The Christian Conclave.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, MO., Sept. 2.—The second day's meeting of the Christian Conclave at this place was largely attended and full of interest. There were present nearly three hundred regularly appointed delegates, embracing some of the most able divines of the Christian Church. Besides these, the city was thronged with lesser lights and members of the society. The prime object of the meeting is to foster missions at home and abroad, and especially to encourage the sending of the Bible to far-away and benighted inhabitants of the globe. The report of the treasurer was encouraging and the "great good work" has received a valuable impetus by the present meeting. Two State meetings are held annually on the same basis of operations. This society of Christians, often called Campbellites, acknowledge no creed, and take the Bible, and that alone, as a rule of action. During the process of the second day's proceedings Mr.s O. A. Carr read an able paper on Woman's Work. Mrs. Carr has the theory reduced to a fair and legitimate basis, and if acted upon by the ladies of America it cannot fail of doing a vast amount of good. Those attending the meeting express themselves highly pleased with the way in which they are being entertained by the hospitable people of Moberly.

The President's Jaunt.

CHICAGO, September 2.—The President's party, composed of President Hayes, Mrs. Hayes, their son Rutherford, General Sherman and daughter, General Mitchell, Mrs. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Harron, Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. Audenreid, arrived in this city this morning a 10 o'clock, en-route to California. They were driven to the Grand Pacific and breakfasted privately with Mr. and Mrs. Drake. The party left shortly after eleven by special car over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. The first stop will be made at Omaha, where Secretary Ramsay will join the party. From Omaha they go to Ogden, down to Salt Lake, back to Ogden, thence to Sacramento. from which place different points of interest on the coast will be visited.

A Fight Amongst the Brewers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 2.—The tariff on foreign malt, the rock on which the brewers split, and which, it is said, is the cause of the battle between the brewers who are malsters and those who are not malsters, is being waged by the leading brewers in New York, Brooklyn and New Jersey, who protest against increasing the duty upon Canadian malt. The members of the Brewers Association says of the proposed advance: It is a put up job on the part of some of the large brewers to scare the small fry who do not raise their own malt. A meeting is to be held of the indignant brewers.

Pennsylvania Y. M. C. A.

PITTSBURG, PA., September 2.—The State Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association have issued a call for the thirteenth annual convention, to meet at Wilkesbarre, Penn., September 23 to 26. Representatives from 180 Christian associations will be in attendance.

The leaders intend to celebrate their proceedings by a banquet to which they have invited Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt, Home Secretary; Henry Labouchere (Liberal), and Sir Henry James (Liberal).

A DEMONSTRATION.

Thomas Power O'Connor will preside at the Irish demonstration against the House of Lords in Hyde Park on Sunday next. A number of Irish members of the House of Commons have promised to participate in the proceedings. The Board of Works has refused permission for the erection of a platform in the Park.

THE TIMES

says it is much to be regretted the House of Lords should have rejected the bill for the registration of voters in Ireland. It was a waste of their power when struggles can be foreseen on matters of great moment. It is imprudent to provide ill-feeling over trifles. The bill provided facilities for the registration of voters in Ireland which were identical in the main with those existing in England, and the House of Lords might wisely have assented to it as dealing with a matter peculiarly within the province of the Lower House.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A train on the Midland Railway, going from Liverpool to London, ran off the track just outside of the Central Station at Manchester. Two carriages were smashed and a number of passengers injured. Six wounded have been taken to the hospital.

FOUNDERED.

The steamer Hardwick, from Odessa for Bristol. with barley, shifted its cargo and foundered. All on board were lost except one fireman.

GOING FOR THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

LONDON, September 2.—The resolution of Thomas P. O'Connor, Home Rule member for Galway, that it is no longer just or expedient that all measures for the improvement of the condition of the people of England, Ireland and Scotland should be at the the mercy of a body consisting of legislators hereditary and irresponsible, was moved in the House of Commons in the small hours of Wednesday morning after the passage of the Burials bill, and was seconded by Labouchere (Liberal), member for Northampton. The Marquis of Hartington humorously deprecated the raising of this great constitutional question at half-past three in the morning. He said he hoped the House would proceed with as little delay as possible to the more serious business on paper. The House then divided on the questions. The numbers were thirteen yeas to seventy-one nays, and the minority consisted of five Irish members and Bradlaugh, Briggs, Broadhurst, Ashton W. Dilke, Sir Wilfred, Lawson, Labouchere, Charles McLaren and Whalley. The majority included four Irish members. Parnell declined to have anything to do with the resolution.

Parliament is to be prorogued next Tuesday.

France.

PARIS, September 2.—The Republique Francaise says: "We decline to believe the Ministry can have anything to do with the letter of the religious congregations. The Ministry must know the Chamber of Deputies would never pardon them for not giving this impudent declaration the answer it deserves, namely, prompt and energetic execution of the decrees." The Republique Francaise expresses the conviction that M. Constans, the Minister of Public Worship, will act up to this expectation. It is remarked that M. Constans has been much with Gambetta, as has also M. Le Pere, whose dissent from the views of Premier De Freycinet is noticed.

King Albert, Queen Carolina, Count Herbert Von Bismarck, Prince Milan of Servia and the French and American diplomatic representatives were present.

The Eastern Question.

CONSTANTINOPLE, September 2.—It is asserted that the powers only agreed to a naval demonstration as a method of moral persuasion, and that they do not intend to land troops or employ any other form of coercion. It is said England and Russia have instructed their commander to endeavor to treat with the Albanian chiefs. Austria, however, objects to this course. The Porte has vainly endeavored to gain Austria's good offices on the Greek question.

RYAN AND DWYER.

The Two Pugilists Anxious to Meet in the Ring, and a Fight Said to be Arranged.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 2.—A dispatch from Troy says Paddy Ryan, the champion pugilist, has been in the city since Saturday for the purpose of settling his difficulty with the West Virginia authorities. Recently two friends of Ryan, while in New York, were met by "Chuck" Dunleavy, the intimate friend of John Dwyer, the Brooklyn fighter. Dunleavy said he wanted to bet $500 for Brooklyn parties that Ryan would not fight, and offered to place $500 as forfeit for a match for $2,500 a side. At that time Ryan was in Canada and his friends did not know he would engage in another fight until his present conflict with the authorities was over. Last night the facts in the case were stated to Ryan and he told his friends to accept Dunleavy's offer and put up a forfeit. He is and says he will get into the ring with him at any time and at any place in this country or Canada. Ryan says he was never in better health than at the present time; he will fight Dwyer and win, then retire from the ring. It is reported that Dwyer is anxious to fight, and he recently remarked that if Ryan would not fight he (Dwyer) would knock Paddy down the first time he met him. Dwyer is clerk in the Police Court of Brooklyn. Talmage was one of his backers for the place, Dwyer promising to abandon prize-fighting if appointed.

ANXIOUS TO FIGHT DWYER

The Tide of Immigration.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 2.—In addition to the flow of gold to this country the tide of immigration at this port continues in steady volume, almost every nationality in Europe contributing thereto. The arrivals during August were 25,300, about 4,000 in excess of any month during the last twenty years. At Philadelphia there has also been a large increase. The steamship companies anticipate a continuance of the movement until late in the autumn. It is estimated at least seventy per cent of the August arrivals have gone West.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 2.—For Tennessee and Ohio Valley, stationary or higher barometer and temperature, southwesterly, veering to south or west winds, partly cloudy weather, with occasional rain. For the Lower Lake Region, lower barometer and stationary or higher temperature, southerly winds, partly cloudy weather and occasional rain. For the Upper Lake Region, stationary or rising, preceded in eastern portion by falling barometer, stationary or higher temperature, winds mostly southerly, partly cloudy weather, with occasional rain. For the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys, stationary or higher barometer and temperature, westerly winds in former, and north to west winds in latter district, partly cloudy weather and local rains.

A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN.

The Democratic Fight in Nebraska Cheering.

A Powerful Arraignment of the Republican State Administration.

NEBRASKA CITY, NEB., September 2.—The campaign in Nebraska is progressing favorably. The State Committee is in correspondence with forty-one counties which have organized Democratic committees and Hancock and English clubs. The canvass in Nebraska will be conducted by the Democratic party as plaintiff and the Republican party as defendant. The charges against the defendant are squandering of the public school funds, distribution of the public lands among political favorites, the levy and collection of an enormous annual tax, which Republican records themselves show has been extravagantly and ruthlessly distributed among political favorites. At Lincoln and other portions of the State the enormous indebtedness of various counties, precincts and school districts in Nebraska makes a fearful annual drain on the pockets of the tax-payers for interest. It is of subsidizing railroads by county bonds, of loaning public moneys to private bankers and the absolute rule of monopoly in the Republican party that the people are called upon by the Democrats to protest. In Otoe county, one of the largest and most prosperous in the State, the Democratic party will make a determined fight against the further levy and collection of taxes for the payment of either of the interest or principal of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of county bonds issued illegally to the Midland Pacific Railway Company. Good counsel has been taken in this regard, and in the judgment of good lawyers the bonds are void, having been issued without the authority of the people, in fact having never been submitted to them at all. There is no doubt but what the county will escape from

AGAINST THE SYSTEM

THIS UNJUST BURDEN.

It is further proposed to refuse absolutely to levy and collect taxes for any obligation of Otoe county, however legal it may be, which draws more than six per cent interest. Upon these propositions in this county and upon similar ones in other counties the Democratic party, aided by many prominent property-holders and tax-payers of other parties, will make a vigorous campaign.

NOLAN DEMOCRATIC BARBECUE.

Letters Received From Hancock and English.

ALBANY, N. Y., September 2.—At the Democratic barbecue here yesterday the following letters were read:

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND, NEW YORK HARBOR.
To F. M. Daucher, Chairman, etc., etc., State street, Albany, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR—I am compelled by my engagements to deny myself the pleasure of accepting your invitation to the political barbecue of the Nolan Association in Albany on the 1st of September. I regret my inability to be present as the occasion will, I am sure, be of great importance and will furnish an illustration of the deep active interest which people feel in the cause we have at heart. Thanking you for your letter of the 28th, I am yours truly.

[Signed] WINFIELD S. HANCOCK.

INDIANAPOLIS, August 12, 1880.
To F. M. Daucher, Albany, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR—It would afford me pleasure to accept your kind invitation to attend the political barbecue to be given by the Nolan Campaign Association September 1, but circumstances would hardly admit of my leaving this post of danger at that time, and so I am reluctantly compelled to decline your invitation. We are counting confidently upon the vote of the great Empire State for Hancock and English and will see that the vote is cast for the same ticket.

Very respectfully, WM. H. ENGLISH.

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

A Man Assaulted and Robbed at Noon To-Day in New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 2.—Soon after midday, as James Mooney, mechanic, was about turning from Sixth avenue into Twenty-fourth street, two men suddenly came behind him, one of whom knocked him down, and as he fell to the pavement, kicked him about the head and body. Mooney attempted to rise and grapple with his assailant, but was again laid out on the walk, while the other fellow stooped over him and, deliberately ransacking his pockets, took therefrom $1 65 in change. The assault attracted a crowd of spectators. The man rifling Mooney's pockets sprang up and with his companion with which they threatened to shoot any one who interfered with them. The crowd then scattered in every direction and the highwaymen walked away. The police have since secured them and a long term of imprisonment now awaits them.

DREW A REVOLVER,

Logan with the President.

CHICAGO, September 2.—A number of ladies and gentleman, including Hon. C. B. Farwell, District Attorney Leape, Collector Harvey, and U. S. Marshal Stilwell, called to pay their respects. Among the floral gifts to Mrs. Hayes was a beautiful basket of flowers from Mrs. John V. Farwell of Lake Forest.

At Naperville Gen. John A. Logan, who had left on an earlier train was taken on board and will continue with the party during the day. Some time will be given at Burlington and Omaha, and it is the expectation to visit Salt Lake, California, and Virginia City, to go by overland route to Oregon and Washington Territory and return by ocean steamer to San Francisco, the whole distance to consume sixty days.

Commodore Nutt Robbed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 2.—Commodore Nutt, the famous dwarf, last night opened a drinking saloon on Sixth avenue. Among those who visited the place were two young men. They sat down at one of the tables and called for drinks. A few moments later when Commodore Nutt passed through the saloon one called him to the table at which he was sitting, saying, "I want to speak to you." Nutt went to the table, when the visitor put his arms around his neck and held his face close to his visitor's body for several moments. Immediately afterward the man and his friend left the saloon. Commodore Nutt then discovered his gold watch, valued at $100, which had been presented to him by P. T. Barnum, was gone.

A SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Joseph O'Brien Seriously Wounded by Sylvester Fitzwater.

The Affair Arises Out of the Theft of a Keg of Beer and Till-Tapping.

A difficulty which resulted in a shooting affair, and will most probably eventuate in a murder, occurred at 3:30 o'clock this morning. The parties to the affair were Joseph O'Brien, twenty-one years of age, and Sylvester Fitzwater. O'Brien was very badly wounded, and, it is thought, will die. Officers Ferguson and Paul, who were informed of the shooting, arrested him at the Green cider factory, corner of Twentieth and Pine streets, and, finding him to be wounded, sent for an ambulance to the Dispensary. The ambulance was sent up and the wounded man placed in it, and the driver started off, not thinking it necessary to be accompanied by a policeman, as the patient was considered too dangerously wounded to escape. The sequel proved, however, that there was considerable vitality in O'Brien, and on reaching the alley near Thirteenth and Pine streets, the driver discovered his charge in the alley, running for dear life. By the time he had turned his horses and galloped a short distance, O'Brien was nowhere visible. The discomfited driver proceeded to the Dispensary and reported his ill luck, which was in due time communicated to the police. Nothing more was heard of the escaped prisoner until 7:30 o'clock, when word reached the Dispensary that O'Brien was in his room at 1834 Lucy street. An ambulance was again dispatched for the wounded man, and on arriving at the place the driver again experienced a sample of O'Brien's liveliness, augmented by no small degree of viciousness. When he walked into the room and informed the wounded man that he had come to take him to the Dispensary to be examined O'Brien jumped up and swore that no one would touch him. Being an old hand and somewhat accustomed to refractory patients, the driver paid no attention to the violent demonstrations of O'Brien and prepared to seize him and conduct him by force to the ambulance. He soon changed his mind, however, when O'Brien flourished his arm, and the driver saw the

LYING VERY LOW

GLEAM OF A RAZOR.

Not anxious to be made mince-meat of, he rushed out and summoned a policeman. with whose assistance the prisoner was placed in the ambulance and taken to the Dispensary. He was examined by Dr. Carson, who discovered a pistol shot wound in the small of the back. The wound was probed, but as the ball could not be found, it is supposed it penetrated the cavity, and is consequently dangerous. He was then sent to the hospital. The man had previously been examined, when just arrested, by Dr. Bryson, who pronounced his hurt very serious. According to the statements of Officers Ferguson, Paul and Fitzwater, the

CAUSE OF THE SHOOTING

is as follows:

Sylvester Fitzwater keeps a lemonade stand at the corner of Nineteenth and Pine streets, where he serves out the cooling beverage to circus-goers, and, if needed, something stronger can be had, as Fitz keeps beer on hand. Early this morning a keg of beer was stolen from the stand while the proprietor was asleep, and Fitzwater had good reason to believe the theft had been committed by O'Brien. His description was given to the police, who skirmished about the neighborhood in search of O'Brien. About a half-hour after the police had gone Fitzwater discovered O'Brien attempting to tap his till. The two men clinched, and a desperate struggle was had for a few moments, and, finding that he could not secure O'Brien, Fitzwater seized a pistol near at hand and fired. After receiving the shot, O'Brien ran, and was captured as above stated. Some time after O'Brien had been disposed of, Fitzwater was arrested and locked up at the Four Courts.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

The rain here yesterday afternoon was the hardest of the season and many cellars are full of water.

The excitement at the primaries here yesterday was at times very high, but there were no disturbances calling for any arrests.

The strike at Plum street yesterday among the freight men did not extend to this part of the city and the strikers at Plum street were all paid off.

Elizabeth Ouhl, eight years of age, living at the corner of Sixth and Market streets, fell from a swing yesterday and broke her left leg.

Three cases for keeping dogs without license were before the Police Court this morning. John Fett was discharged but John Tierest and Herman Hornly were each fined $5 and costs.

A Narrow Escape.

The late passenger train on the Cairo Short Line came very near meeting with a serious accident about seven miles from East St. Louis last night. While crossing a small bridge the wooden supports sunk, throwing one of the coaches off of the track and almost ditching it. The other coach "jumped" the track, but regained it within a distance of a few yards. Under the superintendence of the conductor, who was equal to the requirements of the moment, the train was put on the track again and reached the Union Depot with very little damage done.

First District Police Court.

Edward Williams, a colored boy ten years of age, was fined $20 for driving away with Dr. Phelan's buggy from the corner of Pine and Twenty-first streets day before yesterday. Ellen Bellows was assessed $5 for having disturbed the peace. Fourteen comprised the total number of cases on the docket. Besides the two aforementioned there was none of moment.

THE TIME TO PART.

'Tis our love's noon of glory,
You say with smiling face;
Not yet the wondrous story
For us grows commonplace.
Then, dear lips, reach and kiss me,
And, fond arms, hold me—so;
For now, when you will miss me,
Is the time for me to go.

Nay, nay, I am not cruel—
Speak not to chide or blame;
But now, when lips are fuel,
And now, when kiss is flame,
Before dreams lose their splendor,
Or ennui finds the heart
That is so fond and tender,
Is the time for us to part.

'Tis better to feel sorrow,
And part with tears this morn,
Than to wait until to-morrow
And part with hate and scorn.
'Tis better to go grieving
With many a fond regret,
Than to defer the leaving
Till the sun of love has set.

'Tis better to remember
Our love-year in its bloom
Than to wait until November,
Dull-skied and full of gloom.
'Tis better to go freighted
With our passion full of grace
Than to wait till we are sated
And our love grows commonplace.
Then, dear lips, reach and kiss me,
And, fond arms, clasp me—so;
For now, when you will miss me,
Is the time for me to go.

ELLA WHEELER.

FREE LOVE DOINGS.

An Immoral Camp Meeting in Massachusetts.

Lake Pleasant (Mass.) Cor. Chicago Times.

This is perhaps the most remarkable conglomeration of summer resorts, Sunday school picnics, retreats, spiritualists' camp, free thinkers' abode and general devil's stamping-ground in New England, if not in the country. From a modest country pond, lily-decked and grove-fringed, to which local excursionists frequently resorted for a Fourth of July celebration or church picnic, it has grown within a few years to its present large proportions. The Fitchburg Railroad, recognizing its advantages as a resort, gained possession of the land about the "lake" and began to improve nature. The little stand where rural couples formerly joined merrily in the mazes of "Money Musk" and the "Virginia Reel" was replaced by a larger and much more pretentious structure, where the modern waltzes are now daily danced by the beaux and belles of fashion. The cow-paths and walks worn by the steps of country swains and their sweethearts were widened and straightened by landscape gardeners; hucksters' stands dotted the woods; streets were laid out for cottages and tents, and a couple of screeching little steamboats on the lake knocked peaceful solitude into a cocked hat and drove the long-legged waterfowl from the lonely everglades. A large hotel has been built on the bluff above the lake, and among the 125 buildings about the grounds, which have sprung up in seven years with almost the rapidity of mushroom growth, are several costly cottages.

A good many nice people spend portions of the summer here, and think they get as much recreation as if they went to the seashore or the mountains. It has also been the chosen picnic ground for Sabbath schools for miles around, on the line of the Fitchburg and New London Northern Railroads, while other organizations, religious, social, military and secret, have found it a pleasant place for their reunions and excursions. Of late, however, since the spiritualistic element has become so marked here, religious people have felt inclined to frown on Lake Pleasant. There seems to be a good reason for this, too, for, if all the stories one hears about the daily goings-on are true, the annual spiritualistic gatherings must possess most of the bad characteristics of large camp-meetings, with none of the good.

One of these meetings is just drawing to a close, after continuing several weeks, and being, as an enthusiastic ghost interviewer said, the "largest of the kind ever held in the world." From 200 to 250 tents have been put up and used, and the lake village population has ranged from 2,000 to 3,000, while daily visiters have at times swelled the number to 7,000 or 8,000. In this crowd people of all classes are found. There are typical, musical, magnetic and electrical mediums, astrologers, seers of the past, present and future, inspirational poetical mediums who recite "original poetry" at so much a yard, and slate-writers. Among the more noted exponents and exemplifiers of the spiritual gospel are the Eddys, of "Spiritvale," Chittenden, Vt., notoriety; J. William Fletcher, a well-known test trance medium; Watkins, the slate-writer; Dr. James Mack, who claims to have in London, England, a great reputation as a healer by laying on of hands; Sig. Rondi, Annidiello, Spirisimo, of Turin, Italy; Mrs. Susan G. Horn, author of "Strange Visitors;" David Jones, editor of the Olive Branch; Col. Bundy, of the Religio-Philosophical Journal, and others of less fame. Keeler and Rothermel, of Brooklyn, N. Y., new mediums, have given some very clever performances. Their mode of operating has been to place their musical instruments and bells on a table in a corner of a room, draw a black curtain before the table, and then allow themselves to be held or tied in front of the curtain. With the room darkened, the manifestations would begin, with the usual jingling of bells, thrumming of guitars, and knocking behind the curtain, and the appearance of spirit hands over the top. Sometimes the materialized hands have allowed themselves to be shaken, always eluding the grasp of any one trying to detain them. Skeptics, of course, pronounce the medium a fraud, and accuse them of having concealed assistants, but no one has been sharp enough to detect them. There are also other mediums and other seances, where nightly the shades of defunct Indians, prominent men and women of America and Europe, and occasionally a Chinese philosopher of the fifteenth or some younger century, are trotted out and paraded before the awe-struck audiences. Since the exposition of the Eddy, Huntoon and other prominent spiritualist impositors, these exhibitions have rather lost their interest, except to the faithful.

Besides these particular "attractions," there are many side shows. In one tent hangs a mirror covered with hieroglyphics, apparently of the same formation as the fancy soap works often seen on store windows, which the medium asserts have taken a spirit many days to write. Another tent displays the placard: "Medicines, perfumes, cologne, cosmetics and tooth-wash prepared under spirit influence." Mary Tillotson has been here in Dr. Mary Walker regimentals, trying to institute a radical dress reform movement. The "Cosmopolitans," citizens of the world, a comparatively new spiritualistic society, are here in large numbers, readily distinguished by their red and blue badges.

In all the things mentioned there is nothing really bad but their humbuggery; but there is a dark side to Lake Pleasant life. The guardians of the grounds carefully preserve the peace, and drunken rows are nearly as rare as spiritualistic manifestations under a blaze of gas light. Licentiousness prevails, however, carried on in some of the tents, and in the grove during the dark shadows of the night. The demi-monde of the cities, seeking new fields for their devastation, sometimes find their way here, and under the guise of mediums ply their nefarious traffic.

This is a bad enough phase of Lake Pleasant life, but there are even worse. Many young girls come here without proper attendants, make bad acquaintances, and are probably led astray. There are always some well-dressed debauchees hanging around such a place, ready to increase indefinitely the victims of their lust. They meet the girls from the shops, stores and families of neighboring villages, flatter them with their attention, dance at the pavilion, and then wander off with them beyond the lighted avenues into the woods. If ruin is not accomplished then, future meetings are arranged for, but there is but one result. "If the trees could," said an old farmer living near by, the other day, "they would blush red all over at what they have seen."

The worst of blasphemy, infidelity and transcendentalism is often mingled with the spiritualistic tenets preached from the grand stand. Among the most radical of these speakers is Edward S. Wheeler, editor of the American Bank-Note Detector, at Philadelphia. The other day a man arrived here, who announced himself as a land reformer, greenbacker, woman's righter, free-lover, infidel and spiritualist. He was in for "soft money and soft religion," he said. Several rabid free-lovers have been refused an opportunity to speak from the grand stand or on the grounds, though with what consistency it is difficult to see, when the worst of most all other doctrines are presented. The spiritualists and free thinkers had their best speakers here, and their beliefs have been advocated most eloquently.

Sarah Bernhardt's Company.

From the Parisian.

The agent for Mr. Henry E. Abbey in the securing of a company of French artists to support Mlle. Sarah Bernhardt during her American engagement, sailed for New York on Tuesday. Mr. Schwab's task was a difficult one, inasmuch as the prevailing idea among the actors and actresses was that they should receive from three to five times their real worth in the way of salaries. However, he finally succeeded in making contracts which, while they are fair to the artists, are, on the whole, in favor of Mr. Abbey.

It is agreed that ocean passage is to be paid only one way, and that no expenses are to be paid in the United State save only and excepting actual railroad fares from one city to another. Moreover, the artists have not only signed to play certain lines of business, but also such other parts as may be assigned them by the management. The salary list is a large one, amounting in total to about 35,000 francs for some eighteen persons.

The highest-priced artists are Mr. Angelo, the "leading man"—his real name is Barthelemy—and Mlle. Jeanne Bernhardt, the youngest sister of the great actress, each of whom receives 5,000 francs per month. All are engaged for five months, but salaries do not begin until the 8th of November.

Besides the two artists just mentioned, the other principal members of the company are Mme. Mea, Mlle. Sidney, Mlle. Martel, Mme. Gally, and Messrs. Gangloff, D'Orsay, Bouillond, Thefer, Deletraz, Joliet and Chamounin, the last named of whom has been twice to America already. Mr. Defossez, of the Theatre Royal, at the Hague, is the stage manager, and Mme. Joliet, some time at the Vaudeville, in this city, is the prompter.

The company begin their rehearsals the middle of September on the stage of the Variety Theater. They open at Booth's Theater in "Adrienne Lecouvreur," November 8. Mlle. Bernhardt intends to take the ladies of the new continent by storm, not only in her acting, but in the manner of her dresses. A famous house in the Rue de la Paix is now making for her twelve costumes at a cost of 60,000 francs. She has already bought 300 pairs of gloves, and her stockings and slippers are said to be marvels of richness and beauty. Mlle. Sarah Bernhardt will be accompanied to America by her son, her valet and his wife, and a maid servant, all of whose expenses are to be paid by the management. Her sister Jeanne will have three persons in her suite, but their expenses will not be paid by Mr. Abbey.

The Florences Successful.

London Special to New York Herald, 31st.

The Florences appeared to-night for the first time in "The Mighty Dollar" at the Gaiety Theater, this being the third American play introduced to Londoners this season, of which "The Danites," having made a third move to the Standard Theater, is now running a prosperous career; then Raymond's "Colonel Sellers," which was unfortunate, and now the Florences come with their famous piece, which, to judge from the welcome and applause granted to-night, is voted a success "by a large majority." The house was crammed to its utmost capacity; not a seat was vacant, although this is the dead season in London. The brilliant audience included Lord and Lady Randolph Churchill, Lady Mandeville, the Duke of Beaufort and his son Lord Somerset, Lord Algernon Lennox, the leading London critics and many Americans. The Florences had an enthusiastic welcome. They were recalled after the first, second and last acts, with flowers. Mrs. Florence was in her best vein, and highly amused the audience. Mr. Florence's Judge Slote, which was evidently recognized by the audience as the typical American Senator, as viewed from an English standpoint, evoked bursts of laughter and applause. The Gaiety favorites, Miss Kate Vaughan, whose costumes were marvelous, and Miss Connie Gilchrist, shared in the liberal applause of the audience. The scenery was elaborate and charming. The piece was produced with the greatest care.

A Charitable Duke.

From the New York Times.

One of the worst features of the silly season are the lubrications of the blockhead on his travels. A specimen of the species has lately paid a visit to Arundel Castle, the seat of the Duke of Norfolk, and, alluding to his Grace having inherited the place from an ancestor who received it by grant from William I., who confiscated it from the Saxons 800 years ago, writes: "The heir of all this robbery is now a young fellow 33 years old named Howard; * * * so here is a young fellow of no character, talent or purpose in life owning over 50,000 acres of land. The title to it was in highway robbery and piracy. His income is said by prudent critics to be over $2,000,000 a year." It happens that the young fellow with "no character, talent or purpose in life" is one than whom none in the world is held in higher respect; a model, in fact, for purity in life. It is no exaggeration to say that half of his income, now about $500,000 a year, is given to charity and good works. Following the ancient faith of his fathers, he is the foremost lay member of the Roman Catholic Church in the British Empire, and but for his powerful aid Dr. Newman would never have had the Cardinal's hat which the more enlightened Roman Catholics felt his character and abilities so entirely merited. The Duke of Norfolk's almost too generous hand knows no distinction when any claim is made upon his charity.

Wholesale Death in Battle.

From the Portland Argus.

A melancholy statistical fiend of a Western paper has been compiling incomplete mortuary statistics of some of the big battles of the civil war. Eighty soldiers, all shot above the hips, and all of one regiment, fell dead at one volley in the battle of Gettysburg. At Fair Oaks twenty men went down one upon the other in a space of a few few feet, and never moved a limb among them after falling. One shell at Cold Harbor exploding in the ranks of an Ohio regiment killed sixteen soldiers. At Savage Station, during McClellan's charge, a solid shot fired from a Federal piece at an infantry column marching by fours killed twenty-one men. At Fredericksburg 5,000 Union soldiers were killed in less than ten minutes. Near Vicksburg a gunboat threw a single shell at a rebel battery and killed eighteen men wounding fifteen others.

A Reminiscence of the Great Fire.

From the Chicago Tribune.

At the residence of Mr. John O'Donnell, No. 106 Sigel street, Chicago, our reporter found Mrs. O'Donnell, who said that eight years ago, just after the fire, she contracted rheumatism in the feet, and that after trying all kinds of remedies, some of which cost as much as two dollars a bottle, she had recently heard of the St. Jacobs Oil, and had given it a trial, the result being that a few applications changed her from a bed-ridden cripple to a strong woman, able to dance about the floor as in her youthful days.

DION BOUCICAULT is not an admirer of Sarah Bernhardt. "I could see by her performance of Adrienne Lecouvreur," he said, "that she had followed some of Rachel's business, which, of course, passed into tradition; but, whereas Rachel was a tigress in the great scene of the fourth act, Sarah became by comparison the domestic cat. The best thing in Bernhardt's performance of Adrienne was, to my mind, her recitation of the fable of 'Les Deux Pigeons' (this earned her admittance to the Conservatoire as a girl); indeed, I am not prepared to say that her reading of La Fontaine's lines was not better than Rachel's, for the reason that it was more playful and less heavy; but, after that, the deluge. The manner in which Bernhardt plays the death scene is vitally wrong."

CHARLES THOMAS JACKSON.

Death of the Inventor of the Telegraph and Anæsthesia.

From the New York Sun.

Dr. Charles Thomas Jackson, the physicist, died in Somerville, Mass., on Sunday, after a long illness. It is many years since he retired to a life of quiet and seclusion, but his name is still familiar to older newspaper readers from his controversies with the late Prof. Samuel F. B. Morse and Dr. W. T. A. Morton.

His dispute with Prof. Morse was as to the priority to the discovery of the application of electricity in telegraphy. In October, 1832, Dr. Jackson and Prof. Morse were fellow passengers in the ship Sully, from Europe to this city. During the voyage Dr. Jackson was experimenting with an electro-magnet and galvanic batteries. Prof. Morse and other passengers were interested in the experiments, and Dr. Jackson averred that he then demonstrated how electricity could be used for carrying correspondence. In 1834 Dr. Jackson claimed to have constructed and successfully operated a telegraph on the plan that he described in the voyage on the Sally. The machine that he then made could not be utilized on an extensive scale, owing to the difficulty of getting a steady and continuous current of electricity. The invention of the sustaining battery by Daniell in 1837 obviated this difficulty. In the latter year Dr. Jackson and Prof. Morse began their famous controversy over the priority of discovery, which lasted for many years. Many volumes of evidence on each side were adduced, and lawsuits over patents were begun in several courts. Dr. Jackson always averred that he was the first discoverer of the American telegraph that was patented by Prof. Morse in 1840, and many men of science believed his claims to be well founded. After his telegraph experiments Dr. Jackson practiced medicine, which he soon gave up to devote himself to geology. He was State Geologist in Maine, and afterward held the same position in Rhode Island and New Hampshire. He was the discoverer of the copper and iron fields of Lake Superior, which he explored in 1844.

The controversy with Dr. Morton, above referred to, was over the discovery of ether as an anæsthetic. The discovery was made at the time Dr. Jackson was practicing medicine, but was not claimed by him at the time. His claim was that in 1834 he found by experiment that an alcoholic solution of chloroform applied to a nerve made it insensible to pain. He had previously experimented with protoxide of nitrogen, with less satisfactory results. In 1841 he tried the effects of pure sulphuric ether, mingled with atmospheric air, upon himself, and inhaled it until he lost all consciousness. This experiment he pronounced entirely successful. In 1842 he inhaled ether to allay the pain he suffered from an accidental inhalation of chlorine. This led him, he afterward said, to declare "that a surgical operation could be performed on a patient under the influence of sulphuric ether without giving him any pain." Dr. Morton, however, appears to have first applied ether in an operation performed by him in 1846, and to have experimented with it some years previous to that time. The respective claims of Drs. Morton and Jackson for the credit of the discovery of the anæsthetic were supported by hosts of physicians and men of science, and the controversy was waged for years with great bitterness. The French Academy, which had offered a prize of 5,000 francs for the discoverer, divided that sum equally between the two claimants, holding that Dr. Jackson discovered etherization, and that Dr. Morton first applied it in surgical operations. Dr. Morton refused to take the award made to him and the Academy afterward gave him a gold medal. Dr. Morton strove for years to have his claim properly recognized. He became utterly bankrupt, and his home was sold for debt. Congress was importuned to grant him $100,000 as a national testimonial; and hundreds of physicians and others signed the petition. Dr. Jackson, on the other hand, sent to Congress a petition, signed by 143 physicians of Boston and vicinity, certifying that the discovery was exclusively his. Dr. Morton's petition was defeated, but in a test suit against a hospital surgeon who had applied ether according to his method he gained his point, the United States Court sustaining his claim. Dr. Jackson still had his adherents, however, who contended that he, and not Dr. Morton, was the real discoverer, and the controversy went on until Dr. Morton died. It is said that Dr. Morton's death was caused by excitement over an article which attempted to show that he was not the discoverer of anæsthesia. The citizens of Boston erected a monument to his memory, bearing the inscription: "Wm. T. G. Morton, Inventor and Revealer of Anæsthetic Inhalation." This and other recognition accorded to Dr. Morton caused great disappointment to Dr. Jackson, and he died at the age of 75, feeling that he had twice been wrongfully deprived of the fruits of years of patient study and investigation.

Advantage of Being a Millionaire.

From the Paris Univers Illustre.

M. Vanderbilt was sitting for his portrait to Meissonier. Painter and sitter were chatting.

"Haven't you," asked M. Vanderbilt "a preference, a particular affection for some of your earlier pictures?"

"Yes," said Meissonier, "there is one picture that I really loved, and unhappily it is in Germany. It represented Gen. Desaix in the middle of a plain, questioning some peasants. It was fine; it was very fine. Petit sold it to a German, a Dresden man, long before the war, for 30,000 francs. I have done everything to get that picture back to France,—to ransom it from this captivity in Germany. Petit offered the owner as high as 100,000 francs; he wouldn't sell. I never think of it without a real pang."

"Ah!" said M. Vanderbilt. Then he began talking of something else.

A few days after Meissonier was to dine with M. Vanderbilt. He entered the salon. His Dresden picture, the Desaix, was there on an easel.

"I bought it by telegraph for 150,000 francs," tranquilly explained M. Vanderbilt. "It was a simple enough matter, you see, to get this picture."

A Fashionable Milliner.

Montreal Special Dispatch.

Mrs. Hamburger, a fashionable milliner of this city, left by train a few days since for the purpose of emigrating to New York, where she would have a larger field to pursue her avocation. She had eighteen trunks filled with goods, which she stated to the United States officers at the frontier post of Richford, Vt., contained only emigrant effects, and produced a certificate from the Consul General here in order to pass them free of duty. Owing to advices received from special agents of the department in Montreal the officers at the line proceeded to make an examination, and the result rewarded their vigilance, as rolls of silks, velvets and laces, besides cases of champagne and valuable silverware were found, the whole being estimated to be worth over $10,000. Before leaving this city Mrs. Hamburger was advised by the local officers of the American customs to declare on arrival at the frontier what dutiable goods she had, but this, it is alleged, she failed to do, and her whole stock has been seized, and she was obliged to continue her journey to New York without any luggage.

Cold Tea as a Stimulant.

From the Journal of Health.

A story is going the round of the English papers that a large agriculturist has been giving his harvest hands cold tea instead of beer to drink in the harvest field, and that the results were extremely satisfactory, there being none of the sullenness, excitability and rudeness that had previously been attributed to beer. Because tea does not intoxicate its power as a stimulant is forgotten or underrated, but the fact remains that there is more stimulant in a pint of tea of average strength than in a quart of common beer. It should be remembered, too, that the quantity of tea that a harvester will consume daily as a substitute for beer is greater than that which will suffice an entire family around a supper table. Stimulation, whether by spirits, wine, beer, tea, coffee or opium, is simply a method of consuming one's physical capital, and the laborer who replaces his two or three quarts of beer with an equal daily allowance of tea is exhausting his nerve and muscle more rapidly than he did while guzzling beer. More and better food is what beer-drinking laborers need. The well-fed American farmer, working long hours under a sun hotter than England ever knew, does not drink as much in a week as an underfed laborer will in a day. If workingmen must drink heavily of something besides water—something with a taste to it—let them drink oatmeal water, or water in which brown cornmeal has been thrown. A little sugar will give such drink nutritious and strengthening properties. But let not the temperance men seize and spread the English cold tea story; the cup that cheers but not inebriates is as dangerous, when abused, as the bottle and glass.

MONKEY LIFE IN INDIA.

Living Among Men and Playing With the Children.

From the London Telegraph.

In India, where the monkeys live among men, and are the playmates of their children, the Hindoos have grown fond of them, and the four-handed folk participate in all their simple household rites. In the early morning, when the peasant goes out to yoke his oxen, and the crow wakes up and the dog stretches himself and shakes off the dust in which he has slept all night, the old monkey creeps down the peepul tree, only half awake, and yawns and looks about him, puts a straw in his mouth and scratches himself contemplatively. Then one by one the whole family come slipping down the tree trunk, and they all yawn and look about and scratch. But they are sleepy and peevish and the youngsters get cuffed for nothing, and begin to think life dull. Yet the toilet has to be performed, and, whether they like it or not, the young ones are sternly pulled up, one by one, to their mother to undergo the process. The scene, though repeated exactly every morning, loses nothing of its delightful comicality, and the monkey brats seem all to be in the joke of "taking in mamma." But mamma was young herself not very long ago, and treats each ludicrous affectation of suffering with the profoundest unconcern, and, as she dismisses one "cleaned" youngster with a cuff, stretches out her hand for the next one's tail or leg in the most business-like and serious manner possible. The youngsters know their turn quite well. As each feels the moment arrive it throws itself on its stomach as if overwhelmed with apprehension, the others meanwhile stifling their satisfaction at the way "so-and-so is doing it," and the instant the maternal paw is extended to grasp the tail, the subject of the next experiment utters a piercing shriek, and throwing its arms forward in the dust, allows itself to be dragged along a limp and helpless carcass, winking all the time, no doubt, at its brothers and sisters, at the way it is imposing on the old lady. But the old lady will stand no nonsense, and turning the child right side up, proceeds to put it to rights, takes the kinks out of its tail and the knots out of its fur, pokes its fingers into its ears and looks at each of his toes, the irrepressible brat all the time wearing on his face an absurd expression of hopeless and incurable grief, those who have been already cleansed looking on with delight at the screaming farce, and those who are waiting wearing a becoming aspect of enormous gravity. The old lady, however, has her joke too, which is to cuff each youngster before she lets it go, and nimble as her offspring are she generally, to her credit be it said, manages to "fetch them one on the ears" before they are out of reach. The father, meanwhile, sits gravely with his back to all these domestic matters, waiting for breakfast. Presently the mats before the hut doors are pushed down, and women, with brass vessels in their hands, come out, and while they scour the pots and pans with dust exchange between songs the compliments of the morning. The monkeys by this time have come closer to the preparations for food and sit solemnly, household by household, watching every movement. Hindoos do not hurry themselves in anything they do, but the monkey has plenty of patience, and in the end, when the crow has stolen a little, and the dog has had its morsel, and the children are all satisfied, the fragments of the meal are thrown out on the ground for the "bhunder ogue," the monkey people, and it is soon discussed, the mother feeding the baby before she herself eats.

The Drowning Dodge Again.

Philadelphia Special to Cin. Commercial.

Rev. D. M. Hughes, pastor of the Ashbury Methodist Episcopal Church, of Cinnaminson, N. J., suddenly disappeared last night while on a Deleware River Ferryboat. All search for him proved unavailing, and he was believed to have committed suicide. When the fact was reported to Mrs. Hughes she at once exclaimed that her husband had not killed himself, but had run off with another woman, who is believed to be Alice Watkinson, a young girl residing in Camden. It seems that Hughes, who is a handsome man of thirty-five, has been implicated recently in several scrapes with women, and would have been compelled to resign from the church if he had not disappeared. He sent his wife to Cape May a few days ago, and during her absence claimed that his house was robbed, but a subsequent examination showed that only his clothes had been taken, and he is now believed to have sent them to some place to which he has fled with the girl.

"What on earth's the matter, Gussie?" asked the other girl. "Why, you see, Melindy, I can't enjoy myself, nor have a good time, nur nuthin'. THERE'S A CARRIAGE WAITING.

There's a baby-carriage waiting
Just outside the dry-goods store,
And there's little need for stating
That it's right across the door;
While the prominent position
That the wheels do occupy
Threatens some severe attrition
Of the shins of passers-by.

In the carriage there's a baby
Trying hard to stay asleep
Spite of twenty flies, or may be
More, that o'er his features creep;
While the fond and patient mother
In the store we may descry—
Pricing one thing and another
That she doesn't mean to buy.

Now the baby, being weary,
Yells aloud till ma appears,
And she calls it "little deary,"
And she says she'll box its ears.
Then she smooths its pillows neatly,
With a "hush your noise, I say;"
To a passing friend bows sweetly,
And continues on her way.

HEIDELBERG DOINGS.

An Assault upon an American Student, and the Result.

Heidelberg Letter to Springfield Republican.

There are in Heidelberg several large beer-halls that are the favorite resorts of the students, and where they "most do congregate." They are usually crowded from 10 to 11 in the forenoon, until long after midnight. Outsiders don't trouble them much. If a stranger accidentally finds his way into one he soon discovers that his presence is not wanted, and, swallowing his glass of beer as quickly as possible, he hurries away. If he persists in remaining to drink two or three glasses more, he is hustled out, devoid of ceremony. Occasionally this exclusive spirit in the students leads to hard fights, which end in broken heads and bloody noses; they not unfrequently catch tartars.

A few weeks ago an American student, who had but recently arrived in Heidelberg, strayed into one of these beer-halls of an evening and ordered a glass of beer. He drank that, and then ordered a second and a third. He noticed that the students who were grouped about the different tables, had stopped drinking, and all had their eyes directed toward him as if he was an intruder. When he called for his fourth glass one of the students came forward and told him to leave the hall. He was told by the American that he was aware that Germany was not a free country, but that the beer-halls were free, and he should stay. The German told him if he did not leave at once he would be put out. He was requested to "try it on." When the student went back for reinforcements the student quickly gathered up an armful of the thick, heavy earthen beer-mug plates that were on several of the tables near, and barricaded himself behind a heavy oak table in the corner of the hall. He also collected all the beer-mugs and glasses that were not in use, and that he could speedily lay his hands on, and drew around him two or three chairs to be ready for an emergency. It is said that for a minute or two he worked very lively. When eight or ten of the students rushed forward to carry out their threat there was a lively fight which lasted for about ten minutes. The charge was met by volley after volley of beer-plates, beer-mugs and glasses, every one of which hit its mark and did its work. Two or three of the students jumped on the table and attempted to take the American by force of arms, but were laid out hors du combat by the oaken chairs, which proved admirable weapons of defense. The battle waxed warmer every moment. Fresh recruits took the places of the wounded as fast as they fell back for repairs. The plates, mugs and glasses soon gave out and the barricade was demolished. Then the plucky American met his assailants face to face, with the odds fearfully against him. But he still remained master of the situation. Fortunately he was a scientific boxer, and when the students made another rush upon him they were met with new, to them, and unexpected weapons. Blows played out right and left from his shoulders with such lightning rapidity among the opposing forces that soon several were lying on the floor, and the others withdrew to a distant part of the hall—probably to reconsider the matter of putting the stranger out. The hall was in a fearful condition. Tables and chairs were overturned and broken, windows and mirrors were smashed, and the floor covered with the debris of beer-mugs and glasses. The American, seeing that his opponents did not seem inclined to renew the fight, quietly took his hat and walked out. The next day he was arrested by the proprietor of the beer-hall on a charge of causing a disturbance and for damages for broken furniture, etc. He at once caused the arrest of the students as the aggressors in the fray, and the matter was finally settled by the latter, who were obliged to pay the principal share of the damages. But the Germans were so fascinated with the American's pluck and bravery, that a few nights afterwards they got up a grand demonstration on his account at the same beer-hall, on which occasion an infinite quantity of beer was drunk in his honor, and he was made to feel that he was the hero of the hour. I speak of this fracas as a sample of others which are constantly taking place every week, and several times a week, not only among the students themselves, but among students and outsiders. Scarcely a night but there are street rows and fights between beer-drunken students, policemen and citizens, which result in more or less of the former going to the lock-up.

The Women Who Waltzed Overboard.

From the Poughkeepsie Eagle, August 30.

Friday morning last we published a brief account of the drowning of two women from a canal boat near Cornwall while waltzing on deck. On Saturday the bodies were recovered. The whole story is that the canal boat George C. Notter, loaded with salt, was one of a tow of boats which passed Poughkeepsie on the way to New York at 7 o'clock on Wednesday night last. The captain, William Hill, of Oswego Falls, was accompanied by his young wife, twenty-six years old, and her sister, Maria Milligan, sixteen years of age. The night, though very dark, was warm and pleasant. Capt. Hill had been frolicking on the deck, and he called to his wife and sister to come up from the cabin and see how well he could waltz. Mrs. Hill left her baby, four months old, and her little son of five years below, and went on deck with her sister. After watchng Capt. Hill for a few minutes, one of the women exclaimed, "We can beat you waltzing," and together they whirled along toward the bow of the boat. They danced back, and when they reached the raised part of the deck they accidently struck their heels against the woodwork and fell over the boat's side in each other's arms. Capt. Hill seized a boat hook and, while shouting for help, put the hook into the water and caught the dress of his wife, to whom the girl was still clinging. He tried to lift the women, but their combined weight was too great. All on the boat had gone to bed, except the man at the tiller, and he was too frightened to be of any assistance. Capt. Hill found his strength fast giving out, and saw that he would have to relinquish his hold on the women or himself fall overboard, and before help arrived he took the former alternative and his wife and sister-in-law sank. Capt. Hill's shouts having drawn some men from the other boats, the tug was stopped and a row-boat was lowered. Capt. Hill and one or two others pulled back to the place where the women sank, but no trace of them could be found till Saturday, as stated above.

A Sea Serpent This Time Sure.

Letter from S. H. J., off Kennebunkport, Me.

The guests of the Ocean Bluff Hotel are quite excited over the appearance of this formidable monster close to their bathing beach, and the lady swimmers are careful not to tempt him by venturing far out in the briny. The serpent is no longer a myth, and although this one is not so long or so thick as those reported nearly every year by correspondents of the Republican, still it proves that such things be, and opens a new volume for Prof. Baird and the Smithsonian Institute. The 24th of August was a tempting day for a sail on the ocean, and Mr. B., a well-known and much esteemed gentleman of Philadelphia, invited four of his friends to accompany him in his yacht, the Clara Bell, whose first officer is Hiram Gooch, a veteran sailor and skillful fisherman of this port. When about a mile off shore and near the mouth of the Moonsam River, they saw at an estimated distance of 75 yards a huge serpent swimming swiftly by them with its head partly immersed, showing about 40 feet of its body above the water, the body appearing to be as thick as a half-barrel. Its color was dusky black, and no gills or fins could be seen, and so rapidly did it pass through the water that a spray was raised that obscured the view of its head. The party on the Clara Bell would gladly have attempted a capture, but the wind was so light that their craft scarcely moved, they had no row-boat, and worst of all, no harpoon. The serpent remained in sight for about five minutes and moved in perpendicular undulations, at no time showing its full length, which may fairly be estimated at 60 feet. This is no hoax, but a true description of the creature seen by these men, all of them being acquainted with salt water porpoises, horse mackerel and schools of fish too well to be deceived.

FEEDING THE WORLD.

Something About the Wheat Production of Minnesota.

St. Paul Cor. N. Y. Times.

The result of carefully collected and approximated statistics of wheat acreage and production in 1880 makes Minnesota the greatest wheat-producing State in the Union. There is, apparently, no doubt about that, though there is still some doubt as to the point which the production will reach. But the lowest aggregate which conservative figurers have reached for the present crop is 40,000,000 bushels, while the highest point to which sanguine statistical speculation has scared is, to be exact, 53,339,850. This, for the bewilderment of readers who have been taught by the exact methods of older States to put faith in official figures, is from the official report of the State Commissioner of Statistics. There is nothing exact about our Commissioner's statistics, however, for his acreage. This is gained by actual and minute inquiry of farmers by town Assessors, who report to county Auditors the result of their investigations. The county Auditors report the acreage of each county to the Commissioner of Statistics, who thus has data for getting at the acreage of the State. This year it is 2,963,325 acres, 200,804 or 7.27 per cent more than last year. The Commissioner assumes a yield per acre of 15 bushels, giving him a total product of about 45,000,000 bushels. This he raises to his stupendous total of 53,000,000 by the suspicious process of adding 20 per cent to make up for conjectured omissions by the Assessors. The more conservative estimate is reached by taking the honest and impartial acreage of a little less than 3,000,000, and estimating the yield per acre at 13 bushels. This makes a total of a little less than 39,000,000, upon which I would rather risk my journalistic judgment than the Commissioner's figures. The truth may lie somewhere between the two estimates.

This is several million more bushels of wheat than have ever been returned in a single year in a State where an exact system of returns and statistics prevailed. California, which up to this time has been the heaviest wheat-producing State, grew 30,000,000 bushels last year to Minnesota's 31,000,000. The average in California has not increased as it has here, and though the San Francisco papers claim a large increase through the heavier yield of the fields, it is hardly likely that the whole amount will exceed what is grown in Minnesota. Again Minnesota is only a part of the natural division of the great wheat-growing belt of the new Northwest. Adjoining this State on the west, and stretching northward along the fertile Valley of the Red River of the North, westward along the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and southward again in the newly opened Valley of the James River, are the remarkable wheat fields of Dakota, narrow as yet in their extent, but wonderful in their productiveness. These will be considered later, in speaking of the recent growth and future limits of the great wheat-growing area. It is enough now to say that Dakota, Northern and Southern, with Minnesota, will probably produce one-tenth of the wheat grown in the United States this season, calling the whole amount 480,000,000 bushels.

A Sixty-Day Fast.

Grand Rapids (Mich.) Special.

One Mack Perow, living just north of this city, some two months ago became possessed of the idea that he had a cancer in his stomach and could not eat. He refused all food, and could not be persuaded to take any sustenance except some sweetened water occasionally, and once one teaspoonful of ice-cream. He thus lived sixty-three days, and died late Saturday night. An autopsy made to-day found that his stomach, bowels, liver, lungs, heart, etc., were all perfectly sound and healthy, and that his whole trouble was in his brain. His abstinence from food is perfectly established, also the length of time he fasted. He was formerly a carpenter in the employ of the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railroad.

Two Kinds of Fruit on One Tree.

From the Eastern Argus.

A singular freak of nature may be seen at the Argus office in the form of apples and pears which were grown from the same tree. They came from the orchard of Mr. H. P. Russell, of Great Falls, N. H. Both specimens of the fruit are perfectly formed and are colored alike. The taste is about the same, but in shape the apples and pears are perfect specimens of their respective types of fruit. The explanation is that the bees in the same garden must have mingled the germs of the blossoms and produced this rare result.

TO-DAY the Montana leaves New Orleans for this port. That is doing well, but the friends of progress will not be satisfied till there is a line of St. Louis packets whose time will be to New Orleans—three days.

CAPT. FINNEGAN has chartered the Bertha Lee to run in place of the John F. Moore, which is being improved at Helena, that is, getting her "texas" enlarged, to accommodate colored passengers, who are valued patrons of the steamboats.

LOUISVILLE C.-J.: "There is no use in concealing the fact that he is a remarkable man—a man of push, of vim, of character, of business. No man controls as much prosperity as Capt. Tom Leathers." Ah, that's good. It is admitted that a steamboatman is prosperous.

THE Galena River was, a week ago, very low, and the work the dredge-boats accomplished can be plainly seen. All along the bed of the river large holes have been sunk, and, the Galena writer curiously remarks, as long as a boat remained over these pits enough water would be found to float a man-of-war.

NEW ORLEANS Democrat, Tuesday: The Montana, Capt. N. Baesen, Clerk J. I. Earl, arrived Sunday night from St. Louis, a little less than eight days out. The Montana came down in the Anchor Line, and it is her first appearance in these waters. She is a new boat, built last year; is a nice, clean-looking boat, with a cozy cabin and inviting-looking state-rooms, and, as may be judged from the little time lost in coming down, is as light as they make them.

BROWN & JONES, the renowned coal merchants of the Mississippi Valley, are highly complimented in the Memphis papers. The Avalanche says: The business of Brown & Jones in the South is managed by the resident Memphis partner, Mr. N. M. Jones, who has for fifteen years past directed the firm's vast interests. Mr. Jones is one of our most active and sagacious business men, and in great part the wonderful success of the business in Memphis and all other points in the valley has been due to his admirable management. The firm of Brown & Jones enter on the new commercial year able to do a much larger business in supplying coal than ever before.

ENGINEER BENYAURD says: My examination of the river at Natchez and Vidalia shows considerable change in the banks above since the survey of last summer, due to the extensive caving that has recently taken place. It is proposed to expend the appropriation as far as it will go in endeavoring to prevent further caving. The distance between the river and Lake Concordia is now but a few hundred feet. I expect to start the force in this month. The examination of the Bartholomew, Tensas, Macon and Bœuf Rivers will be made in the course of the summer, and the reports thereon will be forwarded to the Department in time for transmittal to Congress early in December.

ED. FLOOD writes from Old River, August 29: All our work for the past week has been on the crossing from the Ash cabin to Chandler's. We have done some good scouring there. There is at present five feet all the way across, with about nine to twelve feet through the gut and eight to twelve feet at the mouth. It is impossible for boats to come in or go out on the eastern or light shore, as there is a dry bar there that shuts it off completely. The channel is on the western shore and will remain there. Capt. Leyden, with the dredge Lone Star, has a cut-off on the outer bar nearly completed. There is at present eleven feet through it (the cut-off). The river is falling very rapidly.

Shifting Cargoes.

The Norwegian bark Ararat sailed on June 22 from this port for Rotterdam with anti-shifters of the Grain Anti-Shifting Association of New York on board. The Committee of Lords have received the following communication from Rotterdam after the arrival of the Ararat at that port:

"I have inspected the anti grain shifters on board said vessel and found the cargo in the right position, just as if it had been put on board that same day. The captain explained the system to me, and has a very high opinion of its efficiency, but only regretted that he had no opportunity to try it, as he had nothing but fine weather on the passage. Capt. Hungerford, of the steamship Borthwick, who accompanied me, agrees with the captain of the Ararat and with myself, that, if properly applied, these shifters will answer very well, and are to be considered a great improvement."—[Shipping and Mercantile Gazette, London, August 13, 1880.

Since the sailing of the Ararat the anti-shifters have been so perfected, that now the nges are tripped immediately after the ves is finished loading her bulk grain, and as y rest on the loose grain they are free to the moment the vessel leaves the port. is recommendation, which came from inent insurance inspectors, now being plied with, the shifters are considered fect.—[New York Daily.

IT has been a long while since a Republican newspaper was able to dictate Democratic nominations in St. Louis.

THE Democratic City Convention to-day proceeded with unusual harmony. Boland was nominated for Sheriff on the first ballot.

GOV. ST. JOHN has been renominated by the Republicans of Kansas. This shows the power and fascination of a moustache in politics.

IT hasn't been found necessary yet to call out the militia to protect the Republican party in Vermont from the furious onslaught of the Democratic minority.

IN placing a straight Congressional nominee in the field in the Sixth District, the Republicans have virtually made the Democrats a present of a Congressman.

FAR be it from us to bear malice against a brother of the earth, and yet we wish that somebody would make way with Ayoob Kahn. We are getting monstrous tired of hearing of him.

JUDGE JERRY BLACK has furnished Mr. Garfield with another certificate of good moral character. It is not often that a lawyer sticks to his client so tenaciously for a single fee.

MR. HAYES and his official suite will be in St. Louis in a few days. A Republican glee club should at least meet the party at the railroad depot and chant one of Bard Filley's campaign songs by way of common courtesy.

As the Westliche Post has never asked anybody to vote for Arthur, it is presumed that Dr. Preetorius wishes his friends to scratch the odious name off the ticket when voting time arrives. It is only important to vote for the electors.

"CAST a shingle in the Mississippi at St. Louis," said a man of national reputation, "and it will be carried by river and ocean currents to a point nearly opposite New York." Can Chicago say as much? It has the shingle, but the currents are lacking.

MR. HAYES ought to know, if he doesn't, that the great prosperity of the country, which he is so fond of prating about, is due mainly to the Democrats. For twenty years they have been relieved from the cares of office and have devoted themselves diligently to productive industry.

A SOLID page of the Cincinnati Commercial was consumed yesterday with an explanation of Garfield's connection with the Washington Paving Ring. It is worthy of remark that no charge has yet been made against Hancock which couldn't be dismissed with a paragraph.

THE New York Tribune alludes occasionally to Mr. English's barrel. Mr. English probably has as much right to open his barrel in a close campaign as Jay Gould. It is said that Jay contributed about $50,000 toward the election of Hayes four years ago, and it wasn't honestly obtained money either.

THE Leadvillians this afternoon are shivering around town in their overcoats and hunting through their cellars for the disjointed stovepipe. Snow has fallen, the cold snap has set in and the first nine months, the severest part, that is, of the mountain winter, has begun. Here in St. Louis we have not yet commenced to hibernate and if the weather holds its present altitude we never will.

JUDGE LAUGHLIN certainly deserves commendation for his decision in the Cabell contempt case. It was rendered in the face of his personal and political friends and, as many lawyers think, in opposition to sound law, but it adds greatly to the reputation of the Judge for uprightness and fearlessness. No man on the bench of Judge Laughlin's age could have shown more firmness of character. His sterling integrity, honesty of purpose and usefulness have been thoroughly well established.

A FEW PLAIN REASONS.

We believe the census just taken in St. Louis is incorrect, for the following plain reasons:

1. Because it was taken by utterly and notoriously incompetent men.

2. Because the original enumeration made by Salomon, which forms the basis for the official report, was confessedly erroneous.

3. Because the enumeration of school children in 1878 shows that by the lowest possible estimate the city has over 371,000 inhabitants.

4. Because the city census taken by the Mayor in 1866 showed a population which, by natural increase alone, would make very much over 333,000 in 1880.

5. Because, even admitting that 50,000 names were falsely added to the enumeration of 1870, the natural increase and the adding of 30,000 people by new territory would make the population much over 333,000.

6. Because the names in the city directory indicate a population of over 333,000—there being one-third more names in the directory of 1880 than in the directory of 1870.

7. Because if the city has a population of only 333,000 the mortality rate would be nearly doubled and made higher than the most sickly city in the world, when every physician knows such is not the case.

8. Because 18,000 new dwellings and residences alone were built during the last ten years.

9. Because the number of registered voters at this election will be more than double the number in 1870.

10. Because every branch of trade, business, industry and manufacture in the city shows an enormous growth and increase.

11. Because if the census of 1880 is correct it would practically show an absolute decrease—a manifest impossibility.

12. Because—but enough for to-day. These are not all the reasons that might be given, but they are among the plainest and most cogent.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF SEDAN.

Ten years ago to-day Gen. Wimpffen surrendered 84,433 troops, thirty-nine generals, 230 staff officers and 2,095 subalterns to the Germans at Sedan. The Emperor of the French, who had not, by an unaccountable oversight, fallen at the head of his soldiers, was included in the surrender, and the Napoleonic dynasty was shaken from the throne in the midst of the ruin and disaster it had brought upon France. The Franco-German war which culminated at Sedan began in blundering and incompetency, and could only logically end in misfortune and defeat. The Emperor had concluded that a war with Germany was necessary, not for France exactly, but for the Napoleons, and he eagerly seized the first pretext upon which he could lay his hand, the Spanish succession. The issue was forced upon the Prussians and in a miraculously short time both North and South Germany were marching over the French frontier, never to stop until they came into Paris and crowned their Emperor in the seat of the old French Kings. Having begun the war, Napoleon suddenly discovered that he was totally unprepared for it, and delay and indecision did as much as a demoralized commissary and a paper army to precipitate the Teutonic triumph. The Emperor had trusted to Le Bœuf and the event proved that Le Bœuf was as incompetent as he was rash. Bad organization, imperfect mobilization, disorder and delay held the French army as with a leash until Germany was fully ready to strike its blow. The importance of an early success was simply vital, because upon a victory depended all hope of an Austrian and a Danish alliance. The French army reeled back from its own frontier until the disaster at Sedan, September 1, 1870, necessitated the surrender of the following day. Bazaine, who was a traitor to France that he might be faithful to the Emperor, passed 180,000 more prisoners into Prussian possession, and so with one loss after another the war finally ended.

It ended, but does any one believe this peaceful interval is more than a prolonged truce, during which the French are preparing with a thoroughness worthy of Austerlitz and Jena for another wrestle with the Germans? The war was scarcely over when the country settled down to the hard work of repairing past mistakes; the new army which was created, and which is now in an effective state, will consist in time of war of the grand total of 2,685,000 men. This force will not be the disorganized mob which opposed the Prussians in 1870, but an army officered and maintained for modern war, with its system of mobilization so perfect that it can be massed on the German frontier in overwhelming numbers almost at once. France has learned a terrible lesson, but she has learned it well and it looks as though the time for Prussia to enter the bitter school of experience was coming. General Von Moltke has repeatedly called the attention of the Reichstag to the French armament and he evidently entertains gloomy forebodings of the future. The German people are groaning under the weight of taxation which their standing army implies, while the French are enjoying a flood of prosperity. The gold coin has been so utterly drained from the German coffers that silver and paper are practically the currency of the Empire, and the Imperial bank will, it is said, in a day or two suspend gold payments. Another war between the two great powers of Europe is absolutely inevitable, though it may be distant; and this tenth anniversary of Sedan is not a hopeful feast day for either power. The one has a terrible, a disgraceful defeat; provinces have been wrenched away from it and an enormous sum of ready money mulcted from the people. The other is ruining itself more slowly and more surely with an immense standing army and a burden of taxation that we in America cannot understand. The only salvation for the German Empire is a general disarmament, and that is a consummation which the next decade will hardly see. In the meantime the broad fields of America are filling up with an industrious peasantry driven out of their European homes by the grinding weight of the burdens which are too heavy to be borne, and while possible war darkens every horizon in the Old World, peace and plenty and a long reign of prosperity are assuredly ours.

MOVED by the recent murder of Lawyer Harward, of Brooklyn, at the hands of a gang of street ruffians whom he had thwarted in their designs upon a young woman, the able editor of the Washington Star thus muses:

> When we contemplate the amount of private sorrow as an outcome of the ignorance and wickedness of the lower strata of society, the thought is sure to rise that perhaps all this latter day tinkering at the limbs and outward flourishes of mundane things is futile, and that our real progress will date from the time when we begin to educate at the bottom. Any civilization which is built up on a ground work of sodden ignorance and malevolence is in a shaky condition. It is as a gilded cupola surmounting a volcano's crater. It may glisten in the sunlight, but there is an element underlying it all which will continue to thwart our plans until, little by little, the cool waters of education penetrate and extinguish the smouldering fires of vice and passion.

We endorse every word of this. With Mr. Hayes we remark, "We must educate! We must educate or we are lost!" But how are we going to educate people who are physically deficient; people who, by reason of the coarseness of the brain fibre, are incapable of receiving the great truths of science and the approved morals of the age? The editor of the Star does not strike deep enough in his wild agony. We must discover a process by which every child brought into the world can be supplied with a healthy Websterian brain.

AN animadverting voice from the journalistic catacombs at the corner of Third and Chestnut this morning would seem to call for an explanation of our views touching the great Mississippi River. We are in favor of liberal appropriations to draw snags, deepen the channel, build jetties and generally improve this distinguished water highway. Pending improvements of this character we would like to see a line of swift, light-draft steamers plying between this port and New Orleans. Such an enterprise is now in contemplation. We are endeavoring to stimulate the company. We hope to see the day when magnificent ocean steamers will lie at our port alongside the deep-hulled vessels of the Anchor Line, but there are certain physical defects to be overcome which will absorb time. Meanwhile we would like to see feathery steamboats dancing lightly over the sand-bars, producing but slight displacement and carrying freight and passengers at flat-boat rates. Until the bottom can be scraped out of the river it would be wisdom to build boats suited to the average stage of water.

THE authorities in Buenos Ayres have decided to postpone their International Exhibition till the country becomes a little quieter. This is an indication of great wisdom on the part of the Argentines for which the world at large has not hitherto given them credit, although, if they live up to the terms of the postponement, it will probably be somewhere in the nineteen hundred and odds before the great fair will be held. There is too much ozone in the atmosphere of South America to permit the people to settle down to an Exposition or an orderly circus. The Spanish-American cannot content himself for any stretch of time without proclaiming a revolution and assassinating a President, and this sort of thing is very discomposing on visitors from less enthusiastic climes. A Buenos Ayres exhibition, which would be in a state of siege three-fourths of the time and under martial law all the time, would not be as attractive as an affair of that kind ought to be.

IN the loyal and cultivated State of Ohio there was a display of lawlessness night before last that shames the wildest frontier civilization. In Pickaway county a mob of twelve masked men went to the house of a notorious bully named Tom McDonald, dragged him from a sick bed in the presence of his wife and hanged him to a tree until he was as dead as a smoked herring. McDonald was a drunken, roystering fellow and was in the habit of whipping his neighbors whenever it suited him. If this bit of brutal Ku-Kluxism had taken place down South or in the State of Missouri Republican organs would be at this very moment injuring themselves in an effort to make votes for their party by charging the crime up to Democracy. If they couldn't find politics in the episode they would trace it to a lack of school-houses. With all their intellectuality over in Ohio they still seem to have a fair share of meanness.

BEN. BUTLER is back in his old place as leader of the Democracy of Massachusetts. He had complete control of the Worcester convention yesterday and dictated the State ticket and platform. Hon. Charles P. Thompson, of Gloucester, the nominee for Governor, is an excellent man, and his election is by no means among the impossibilities. Twenty years ago Ben. Butler managed and controlled the Democratic party in Massachusetts as thoroughly as Cedric the Saxon mastered his serfs. It used to be said that he kept the party conveniently small so that the Federal patronage would just about go round. It is to be hoped that he isn't going to revive the old tactics.

THIRTY or forty thousand people assembled at Canton, Ohio, yesterday, the occasion being a Soldiers' Reunion. The Rev. R. B. Hayes was present and delivered an old almanac on the subject of education, interlaced with statistics touching the general prosperity of Hail Columbia, happy land. The massive convocation is now pointed to as an exhibition of the alertness, compactness and energy of the Republican party of Ohio. If the concern had been advertised as a Republican mass-meeting the testimony would have been more valuable.

THERE is too much religion in the Republican party for Bob Ingersoll, and this is probably the last year that he will work with the organization. He has been traveling in New England mostly, delivering Republican speeches and throwing off an infidel lecture wherever a sufficient crowd could be raised. The editor of the Zion's Herald, of Boston, denounced him the other day and declared that he was an absolute injury to the Republican party. In reply, Bob said to an audience that attended his infidel show in Boston on Sunday night:

> This editor points to me, speaking of what he calls the Republican party, and says it will drive intelligent men from the party if I address them. I suppose he means it will drive the Christians away from the Republican party if I am called upon to address the voters of that party. Just let me say to that gentleman that I don't need the Republican party; I want to say to that gentleman that I want no office, no place at the hands of the Republican party; I want to tell him that, if there were a few more bigots in that party, I would not stay in it. [Applause.] I know hundreds of Republicans, and their Republicanism is the only decent thing about them. I also know hundreds of men within the ranks of the party who are narrow, mean and bigoted, and he is one of them. [Applause.] I know hundreds of real, broad, generous Democrats, and I love them. I go with the party that, in my opinion, stands for the greatest human liberty [applause], no matter whether it is the Republican or the Democratic party. I go where my brain and my heart take me, and I go simply because they do take me. I think ten thousand times as much of liberty as I do of any party; no party owns me; no party has a mortgage on me; I own myself.

We warn Mr. Ingersoll that he is not wanted in the Democratic party. You must get up an organization of your own, Robert.

MR. JOHN W. OVERALL, formerly of this city, has contributed to the Home Journal a poem on his friend, the late Adelaide Neilson. He refers to the delicate dusk of her brunette skin; her magnetic Egyptian eyes; her curl-rimmed, low Greek brow, and the tender look which married his glance "in the happy days long syne," but the climax is found in the second verse, to-wit:

Why, Lil, you vie with the marble won
From the old Pentelican hill
And wrought into weird and pulseless life
By the Pheidian craft and skill!

THE color question is raising Cain in the Republican party in the County of Coshocton, Ohio. A short time ago a negro was put on the county ticket with a great flourish. After sober second thought the Republican leaders thought they had made a mistake and requested the fellow to withdraw. He wouldn't do it. Then all the rest of the nominees withdrew and left him alone. He still holds the fort. Three cheers for the indomitable and irrepressible negro!

PRIVATE DALZELL and the Hon. C. I. Filley are both agreed that this must be a singing campaign. The notes of the Republican Glee Club are expected to drown the querulous voice of the man who wants to know about that Credit Mobilier business. It will be gratifying to Dalzell to know that our Missouri Bard has just turned out another stirring song entitled, "We'll Split 'Em Up the Back."

THE many friends of Billy Florence will be pleased to learn that he appeared in London last Monday night as "Bardwell Slote" and escaped with his life. Those Englishmen have about concluded that if they don't endorse one of our plays pretty soon we will give them another pounding.

THE cotton worm costs the South $15,000,000 annually and Le Dook has already spent half that sum in trying to breed a bird that will eat them. He expects to produce the desired result by crossing a bald-headed eagle with the common domestic, tobacco-chewing goat.

JOHN HABBERTON'S new play, "Deacon Crankett," has been tried on a Baltimore audience without producing suffocation. Baltimore seems to be a sort of Foolometer for American playwrights.

IF Gen. Hancock would go to Wisconsin and invite the Fifth Regiment out to take a drink he would probably be forgiven for his cruelty to them when they were dry during the war.

THE Hotel de Paris, at Denver, Colorado—just think of that name—has been reduced to ashes. Peace to its hashes.

PERSONAL.

—Mme. Cespedes, the widow of the Cuban patriot, and a beautiful and graceful woman, is staying with her two children at Saratoga.

—A Philadelphia clergyman is preaching what he calls sermonettes—little sermons. The sermonette contains a religionette—a very little religion.

—It is said that Hamilton Fish spent more money in Washington while he was living there than is spent by all the members of the present Cabinet.

—The Princess Zorka, of Montenegro, is seventeen years old, and is a well educated and beautiful girl. She is to become the wife of the new ruler of Bulgaria.

—Mr. Frederick A. Potts, the Republican candidate for the Governorship of New Jersey, is a tall, slender, dignified man, with gray hair and closely-trimmed whiskers.

—It is a noticeable fact that in South Carolina nobody lower than a Colonel ever shoots at anybody, or is shot. Plebeians are comparatively safe in that section, but the trouble is that there are no plebeians.

—Ex-Mayor Vaux, of Philadelphia, tells how he danced with the present Queen Victoria when she was only a girl and he was visiting England. In 1842 Mr. Vaux was one of the associate editors of Graham's Magazine, with Poe.

—Lotta is on her way home from Europe, and a New York paper announces that "she brings with her several novelties for use in her plays." This means, of course, that we are going to see something new in the shape of striped stockings this winter.

—Hanlan has left for England and Courtney is reported to be practicing swimming every day. When we remember what violent storms sometimes occur on the Atlantic in September, and how easy it is for swimmers to get the cramp, things do not look so very dark after all.

—Joe Emmet, during his recent voyage to Europe and back and his two weeks' stay in England, totally abstained from liquor, and expressed the belief on his return that his old appetite was cured. He landed in New York on the 13th of August, and in just one week his old habit overmastered him.

—The wonderful boy violinist D'Albert, who is becoming so popular in England, is said to be, in spite of his genius, a "thorough boy, laughing, joking, up to any fun." But the moment he comes to the piano he is like an Arab horse with thrilling nerves and eyes dilated.

—Miss Beatrice Trollope, daughter of Mr. T. Adolphus Trollope, the novelist, has just been married in Paris to Mr. Charles Stuart Wortley, a member of Parliament. The bride was given away by her father and wore a frock of cream-colored muslin, her bonnet being trimmed with orange blossoms.

Mr. Filley's Very Latest.

KIRKWOOD, MO., September 1, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You gave only the refrain in your issue this evening. Here are four stanzas of the latest Phyllian production:

"My dear," said Columbia, one day to her spouse,
"A new pupil is coming into the White House,
We'll have to be prudent in providing for him,
But Rutherford's breeches will fit little Jim.
The neat little breeches,
The dear little breeches,
The star-spangled breeches will fit little Jim.

"Our James has disabled his pants at the seat
In the games played upon the De Golyer paved street,
And in such condition they're not very trim,
But Rutherford's breeches will fit little Jim.

"Reconstruction in patches has made them quite warm;
All the little holes darned with the yarn of Reform:
So his eyes they will glisten with joy to the brim,
When Rutherford's breeches are fitted to Jim.

"And if in the future they should hapless get torn Mobilier facings, as he has formerly worn,
Can be used in the mending, though in texture 'tis slim,
And we'll fix Ruthie's breeches so they'll always fit Jim.
The neat little breeches,
The sweet little breeches,
The Reform-mended breeches which fall to our Jim."

The Phyllian muse is still in the throes of parturition. Yours, A. F. H.

Falsifying the Record.

From the New York Sun.

John Sherman made a speech for Garfield at Cincinnati last night. "Hayes was elected," he said. That is false. John Sherman knows that it is false. Every voter who listened to John Sherman's speech knows that it is false. Hayes was not elected.

Really Funny.

From the Washington Post.

The best piece of quiet humor that has appeared this season appears to miss that general appreciation which it richly deserves. We refer to the solemn statement that overwork has undermined the health of a State Department official.

Van Horn's Dilemma.

From the Kansas City Times.

The spectacle of the venerable Van Horn pausing at the cross-roads and debating mentally whether he'd better take the highway leading to the Governorship or the tow-path leading to Congress, is indescribably touching.

Will Find a Man.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"Will You Love Me When I'm Old?" is the title of the last song sent to this office. We can't promise, but in case the job is too heavy one of the Bartlett boys can be called over from England.

Married at Last.

From the Troy Times.

Married, at Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Saturday night, August 28, 1880, the Widow Butler and the Democratic party. And may God have mercy on both their souls.

At a Low Ebb.

From the New York Tribune.

Social gossip in St. Louis has reached a low ebb. An elopement of an apple woman and an Italian barber is seized upon by the local editor as a boon.

Joke on the Fool Organ.

From the Chicago Times.

A St. Louis setter gave birth to thirteen puppies the other day. "We must have a new census," cries the St. Louis Republican.

East St. Louis.

The East St. Louis elevator is still going at full speed and is in want of men.

Charles Leaham received a scalp-wound a few days ago while trying to shift a belt with a stick.

Tom Enwright, who has occupied a cell at the station house, has been released, having worked out his fine.

Depot Master McDonough, of the Relay, and family, returned this morning from the Green Mountains, greatly improved in health.

The heavy rainfalls of the past few days have done an enormous amount of good besides the excellent scavenger work about East St. Louis. The cisterns about the city, which were very nearly dry, are now almost full.

During the month of August ninety-seven arrests were made by the police, ninety-three of which were males and four females. In the list of charges twenty-three are credited to drunk and disorderly, twenty-one to disturbing the peace and sixteen larceny.

James Gray entered Sippe's saloon, on Missouri avenue and Rock road, and fell asleep there. When Mr. Ferdinand Sippe attempted to wake him up he became disorderly and attempted to hit him with a chair. He was afterwards arrested with an open knife in his possession. This morning he was put under $100 bonds to appear before the grand jury.

New Accusations.

Timothy Murphy, a railroad engineer, asked the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney for a warrant for Pat O'Connell, the proprietor of a saloon on Sixth street, between Morgan and Franklin avenue. Murphy said that some time ago he was robbed of $40 worth of clothing while rooming at O'Connell's; that he reported the occurrence to O'Connell, who informed him that the value of the goods would be deducted from his bill for rent, and long before the time sufficient to cover his loss had expired, and while he was away from town, O'Connell seized his trunk for rent, and that when he obtained a writ of replevin his property was hidden so that it could not be discovered by the Constable and his deputies. After some conversation with the attorney Mr. Murphy left, probably for the purpose of trying to effect a compromise with O'Connell.

THE CITY TICKET.

Public Administrator.

Judge Wm. C. Jones briefly put in nomination Martrom D. Lewis, and upon motion of Mr. Sheehan, of the First Ward, the secretary was instructed to cast the vote of the convention for him.

Coroner.

W. H. Cloptor, on behalf of the Second Ward, placed in nomination Dr. Sylvester J. Nidelet, paying a most glowing tribute to the veteran surgeon.

W. P. Bently placed in nomination Dr. Wm. C. Green, of North St. Louis.

Mr. Phenix, of the Tenth Ward, seconded Dr. Green's nomination.

The Fourteenth Ward seconded the nomination of Dr. Nidelet.

Mr. J. J. McGaffy made a strong presentation of the claims of Dr. Justin McCarthy. Silas Dooley put Dr. Barbee in nomination. Judge Dryden raised the question of Dr. Barbee's eligibility upon the score of being a member of the House of Delegates. Mr. Dooley replied that Dr. Barbee had obtained the opinion of the City Counselor to the effect that he is eligible to hold the position. There was some further debate upon this subject, during which Judge Jones stated that the Coroner, being a State officer, is not in any manner affected by any provision of the scheme and charter. The first ballot resulted in the election of Dr. Barbee, who received 86 votes, Nidelet 26, McCarthy 21, Green 7.

The Central Committee.

The ticket being finished, the spectators began to file out in large numbers. The president then announced that the chairman of each delegation name a member of the Central Committee, and the following names were selected:

During the call of the wards a delegate from the Ninth arose and wanted to know what was to be done in the case of the Ninth Ward. Three of the delegates were in favor of Mr. Doyan and two were opposed to his return. The Chair decided that the majority of a delegation had the right to name the member, and Mr. Doyan went on the list.

The Committee Called.

The old and new Central Committees were requested to meet at Democratic Headquarters to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

Adjournment.

Chairman Slayback returned his thanks to the convention for the good order maintained and the convention adjourned with three cheers for the ticket.

The Scene in the Hall

previous to and at the opening of the convention was neither lively nor exciting. About one-third of the space reserved for the spectators was occupied by persons who watched the performance with little interest. Towards the front of the hall, and around the stage, the candidates clustered like flies around sugar, and so eager were they in their attentions to the delegates that for a time after the opening the action of the convention was hampered and delayed. At last an irate delegate from the Ninth Ward loudly insisted that nobody but delegates be allowed within the space allotted to members, and, this order being enforced, everything went on smoothly. Many of the candidates are present in the hall, and are easily recognizable by the look of weary anxiety in their countenances. Rumors of changes among delegations, which would be wonderful if true, are continually putting the lobby into a flutter, and the excitement among those personally interested is at a white heat. The general desire seems to be to get down to business, and when Judge W. C. Jones moved that all resolutions be referred to a committee of five, announcing that his intention was to expedite matters, the remarks were received with loud applause.

In the Lobby.

Among the prominent Democrats in the lobby were Col. A. W. Slayback, W. C. Hobbs, Frank D. Turner, A. J. Clabby, Nic. Bell, Dr. Lynch, A. N. Merrick, W. P. Bentley, Peyton Jones, Henry Schnaider, Vernon Knapp, John W. O'Connell, Jerry Ryan, Ashley Cabell, Shepard Barclay, B. P. Taaffe, W. B. Thompson, Robert M. Foster, Josh Ladue, Delegate Michael O'Malley, John I. Martin, Dan'l O'Connell Tracey, Jeff Chandler, Tim Ryan, J. H. Hawley, J. J. McGarry, Morrison Renshaw, Joseph McIntyre, Circuit Attorney Normile, M. J. Mullery, Harrison J. Baldwin, Walter C. Carr, Hon. Charles P. Johnson, E. C. Cabell, James Coff, Tom Hogan, Jr., Barney Slevin, Col. Dan Able, Henry Baggott, R. U. Leonori, John D. Finney, James McCaffrey, John Drake, P. J. Curran.

The Nominees.

MORGAN BOLAND.

Morgan Boland, who was chosen as Democratic nominee for Sheriff, is comparatively a young man. He is only thirty-eight years of age. Mr. Boland is a native of Springfield, Missouri, and has lived in St. Louis constantly since the war. He has been on the St. Louis police force for seventeen years, seven years as patrolman and ten as sergeant, and during all this time there has never been a charge preferred against him. His record is one of the most excellent in the department and his friends justly claim that this is an evidence of what he will be in a more exalted station. Mr. Boland only missed the nomination the last time by a very few votes, and his exertions in the southern end of town largely contributed to the Democratic success.

W. H. HORNER.

The nominee of the convention for Circuit Judge is a Virginian by birth, but he was raised in Wisconsin, of which State his father was Governor. He has lived for many years in St. Louis, and is related by marriage to the Lucas family here. Mr. Horner only missed the nomination last year by two votes. He is thirty-eight years of age, and has a very fine legal practice.

JUDGE J. G. WOERNER, who was renominated by acclamation to the seat which he now holds on the Probate bench, is the oldest man on the ticket. He has served in the Legislature and State Senate, and has been a consistent Democrat all his life.

SAMUEL ERSKINE,

the nominee for Circuit Attorney, is a young man of thirty odd. A native of Ireland, he came to this country when very young and taught school in Wisconsin for several years. He then came to St. Louis and engaged in the practice of law, at which he has been successful. Mr. Erskine at present holds the position of Prosecuting Attorney of the First District Police Court. He is known as a lawyer of great information and deep reading, and his acquaintance with criminal law especially fits him for the position to which the party has called him.

E. A. NOONAN,

the next Assistant Circuit Attorney, came to St. Louis from Indiana. He married in this city, and has a very wide circle of friends. Mr. Noonan has already filled the post to which he has been renominated for the past four years to the thorough satisfaction of the people. Mr. Noonan is a young man, like the other nominees.

M. D. LEWIS

has already filled two terms as Public Administrator and he has become so associated in the public mind with the office that his nomination was by acclamation. He is St. Louis county born and has now been forty odd years in the harness.

DR. A. B. BARBEE,

the candidate for Coroner, resides at Taylorwick Station, and has a large practice in the West End, where he is very well known. He is fifty-two years old and has been a resident of St. Louis for a very long time.

Lucky Schoenfeld.

The only business transacted by the Court of Criminal Correction this morning was the dismissal of the case of Louis W. S. Schoenfeld for want of prosecution. The defendant and a man named Marks Gumpert were arrested about three weeks ago for swindling Wm. Ammon, a farmer from Kentucky, of some $700. Ammon declared his intention of instituting a criminal posecution and accordingly Detectives Lawler, Hennessy, Rahill and O'Neil, in conformity to the custom which now obtains, preferred against Schoenfeld and Gumpert the charge of being vagrants, associating with gamblers and other bad characters at the gambling-house No. 9 1-2 North Sixth street. A trial of the cases before Judge Jecko, in the First District Police Court, resulted in each party's conviction and the imposition of $500 fines. Appeals were immediately taken. Gumpert's case is still on the docket, not having been called for trial. The other came up this morning, but Wm. Ammon, the chief, witness for the prosecution, was not in present, and, therefore, the order for dismissal ensued.

Bob Boggs' Adventure With a Dog and What Came of It.

Farmer Boggs resides a few miles back in the country, and among his other possessions an irrepressible, wide-awake fifteen-year-old boy known as "Bob" figures conspicuously. The youthful heir is rather prone to mischief, but the end is not always bad, as you will see. The old man made Bob put on his best "Sunday go-to-meetin'" suit yesterday and started him over to a neighbor's house on an errand, with the parting injunction, "Behave yourself and hurry back." Bob started out determined to make a good record for himself for once, but the sunshine was bright and the birds were singing such joyous songs that the imp of mischief asserted his power, and when a convenient orchard loomed up to Bob's vision he determined to fill his pockets with rosy apples then and there. He accomplished this and started back for the road, but just as he was climbing the fence the farmer's dog spied him, and when our young friend did get over, the most important part of his pants was missing, not to mention the sad condition of his jacket. The result was that the old man dressed him down beautifully with a convenient sprout, and this morning found them bright and early looking through the magnificent stock of boys' clothing at the "Famous." A selection was soon made, and Bob returned home happy in the possession of an elegant all-wool Sunday suit. When the "old man" paid the bill, and found the price was only $7 50, his astonishment was great, and he declared that Bob's adventure with the dog was a fortunate circumstance, as it induced him to examine the most complete stock of boys' clothing in the West. He says he'll name his next dog "Famous."

THE FRESH AIR MISSION.

No More Trips for the Children This Year.

Resume of the Work Accomplished by the Mission This Season.

Doubtless there were many poor children and sick people looking forward longingly yesterday to the accustomed trip up or down the river. Cooped up in their miserable lodgings and constantly inhaling the foul odors which exude from the filth usually found in the neighborhood where poverty is the distinguishing feature, the beneficiaries of the Fresh Air Mission regard their weekly excursion on the river as an inestimable boon, and through the long winter months, when they sit and shiver before the dying embers in their fire-place, or cracked stove, they will recur with pleasure and gratitude to the healthful picnics had during the summer. To them the pure air, fresh from the verdure-covered fields and redolent of the perfume of wild flowers, was a stranger, and when they had experienced its revivifying and cheering influence, it is no wonder the wan and sickly anticipated with pleasure the next feast. But the missions have been discontinued, and only the happy remembrance remains for them to enjoy. Last Thursday was the last of the season, though several more would have been given, were it not for intervening obstacles. The charitable persons who organized and superintended the mission reaped as much pleasure from the excursions as did their charges, and it is a sore disappointment to them that unavoidable circumstances interfere to cause their discontinuance.

Means are not lacking, as plenty of money, at least sufficient to defray all expenses, is always forthcoming, but a suitable boat cannot be had. The E. W. Cole, which had been employed, has resumed her regular business, the Cherokee is also away and the Chouteau is beyond reach. The regular passenger or freight boats are unsuitable owing to the lack of room. It is unfortunate that such is the case, as many more hot, sultry days may be expected before winter, yet there is the satisfaction that the Fresh Air Mission has been an unqualified success. There were nine excursions altogether, and thousands of sick and poor enjoyed their benefits. Next season the ladies and gentlemen in charge of the good work will begin early and use every endeavor to make the trips more profitable to the sick and more enjoyable to the poor. This summer the nine trips cost in the aggregate $1,400.

HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION.

Latest Arrangements and Plans—Splendid Samples of Fruit Coming.

The Annual Fair of the Missouri Horticultural Society, which will open here on the 7th inst., promises to eclipse every previous exhibition. Mr. Tracy, the secretary of the Society and President Earle, have been indefatigable in their efforts to insure the success of the fair, and the highest prospects are indicative of a splendid reward for their labors. The exhibition will take place in the Merchants' Exchange, and will interfere as little as possible with the merchants. The tables belonging in the Exchange will be ranged about the hall, between the heaters, for the use of the merchants, and pine tables sixty-five feet long will be placed in the center for the reception of the articles on exhibition. As many other tables as are necessary and available will also be employed. The Ohio Society met yesterday at Columbus and the Kentucky society is in session to-day in Louisville, both of which will give their quota towards the St. Louis exhibition. Secretary Tracy received a letter this morning from a gentleman in New York, who desires space to place 175 varieties of grapes. Allegan, Michigan, will send a choice collection of fruit, and four other large collections are expected from the same State. A very large shipment from California is en route and a number of others will follow. Mr. J. C. Plumb, president of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society, has written a letter stating that the State will send a creditable exhibit.

Texas will not be behind time, and Denison and Houston, representing the two extremes of the State, will send a considerable quantity of fruit. A letter from Little Rock informs Mr. Tracy that the writer desires space for 125 plates of fruit. A variety of tropical fruits will be shipped from New Orleans, and almost every county in Missouri will have its productions in competition. Fully 10,000 plates of fruit will be on exhibition, and all of the choicest varieties of horticultural productions.

Mr. Earle, President of the State Society, is in town, and will make the headquarters of the society at the Laclede Hotel. There are at present in cold storage here 250 packages of fruit, and accessions to these will be arriving every day.

It is to be hoped there will be a large attendance, as the benefit is to aid the Cavalry Company in procuring new uniforms, equipments, etc., all of which were lost by the burning of the Riding School. The programme is chiefly musical, and includes the St. Louis Grand Orchestra, the Arion Quartet, Mr. Dabney Carr and others. The benefit will be a society event.

A Missing Girl.

Mrs. Pullen, living on the west side of Twelfth street, between Soulard and Lafayette, requests any person who may ascertain the abiding place of her daughter Jennie to inform her or the police immediately. Mrs. Pullen says Jennie is sixteen and a half years of age, fair-complexioned, pretty and inclined to embonpoint; has short brown hair and blue eyes, and, when she left her home last Monday, was attired in a calico dress, a blue sash, a sailor straw hat, side-lace shoes, and flesh-colored silk stockings ornamented with clocking. The mother's account reflects damagingly on Jennie's character. She states the errant daughter was the companion of a girl who frequented a house on Eighth street, near Clark avenue. The detectives are searching for Miss Jennie, whom they desire to return to her home.

A CHIROPODICAL SWELL.

Tompkins, the Man Who Looks After Royal Pedals.

Lucy Hooper's Paris Letter to Chicago Times.

The American colony in Paris is a charming organization. It comprises many lovely and amiable women and many intelligent and refined gentlemen. Moreover, for the deeper interest of the casual observer, one often stumbles upon what is called "characters" in its ranks. Sitting here on this balmy summer morning, I suffer my thoughts to stray over the images of my countrymen and countrywomen that reside in this city. One prominent personality arrests my wandering ideas—one marked physiognomy seems to insist on being transferred to paper. So be it. I take up my pen, and, with a hand that trembles at the magnitude of my subject, I will essay to sketch for the world at large the likeness of Dr. Tompkins, chiropodist.

The position that the eminent medical man aforesaid occupies in our midst must not be judged of by the comparatively lowly and limited nature of his curative ministrations. If you were to ask him who, in his opinion, was the greatest personage in the American colony, not excepting the American Minister, he would undoubtedly answer "Dr. Tompkins." He bases his claims to distinction on the fact that he has held in his professional grasp the feet of nearly every crowned head in Europe. Respecting these ministrations he is wont to discourse very fluently. According to his own account he is the chosen confidant of all his royal patients respecting the most delicate and hidden secrets of diplomacy. His intercourse with the late Emperor Napoleon III., for instance, was of the most tender and touching nature, apart from the tenderness of arms and the touching of his professional knife. He it was who prevented the recognition of the Southern Confederacy by that astute potentate, though the English Government unjustly claims that honor. He it was that said to the Emperor with mild yet respectful firmness, "Non, non, sire, vous ne ferez pas cela," and the Emperor responded with a sigh: "Well, then, Tompkins, mon vieux, mon brave, if you say it shall not be done of course the thing is impossible." It was he who negotiated the reconciliation between the Emperor and the Empress, on the occasion of that lady's sudden journey to the Scottish lakes some years before the downfall of the empire. The Empress was jealous, but wholly without reason, of course, for, according to Dr. Tompkins, the life of Napoleon III. was one long and chaste exemplification of the beauties of conjugal fidelity. Alas, had his counsels only been heeded to the end, the war with Prussia never would have taken place and France would still be enjoying the blessings of imperial rule. For did he not kneel at the foot of Napoleon III. during those summer days of 1870, beseeching him to rescind his determination to go to war? And did not the Emperor turn away with a sigh, exclaiming: "My faithful Tompkins it is, alas, too late"? It was too late. A blight fell upon France and upon the social relations of Dr. Tompkins and his family as well. For, so intimate were they with the dear Empress, Eugenie, that any other feminine society thereafter appears to them altogether vulgar and commonplace. They live shut up with the memories of the past and with one of the Empress' old bonnets. Touching relic!

The Doctor is one of the most decorated men in Europe. He possesses a full collection of all the orders known in that land, from the grand cordon of the Legion of Honor down to the Cross of the Blue Bullfinch of the Grand Duchy of Saxe Butterbrod. These are all trophies of his skull. They tell of wounds not borne by him, but inflicted not in the cruel ranks of war, but in the noble exercise of the art of healing. An inverted nail on the alabaster foot of the Empress Eugenie won him the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor. An obstinate bunion that racked the system of the autocrat of all the Russias was the means of obtaining for him the grand cross of Vladimir. There is not a cross, or star, or bit of ribbon in the well-filled cabinet wherein he guards his treasures of that nature, that does not speak of pain relieved or of a successful wrestling with pedal excrescences. The Prince of Wales wears his patent-leather boot with a jauntier air because of the ministrations of Dr. Tompkins. The Princess Stephanie, of Belgium, will walk to the hymeneal altar with her imperial betrothed with a lighter step because of that eminent practitioner's skill. When all tests to determine the identity of Prince Louis Napoleon at Chislehurst proved total failures, it was Dr. Tompkins who showed conclusively the remains to be no other than the corpse of his beloved patient, by pointing out the traces of his operating knife on the prince's left great toe. With cruel ingratitude the official pictorial representations of the event left out Dr. Tompkins' agitated form altogether. It was, in fact, suggested that a new question du jour might have been constructed by simply writing on the photographs taken of the scene, "Seek for the Chiropodist."

From what I have written alone, it will be seen that the doctor is a staunch Bonapartist. In fact he is moralded out of Bonapartism. Were there an antidote for imperialism as benzine is for grease spots, the doctor, on being sponged with it, would suddenly and utterly disappear. Though he is a Protestant by profession, his calendar comprises the names of three saints—the Emperor, the Empress and the Prince Imperial. To cast a doubt on the purity of Louis Napoleon's morals, or on the youth and beauty of the Empress Eugenie in this year of grace 1880, is to uncork all the vials of his wrath. Yet his influence over the minds of the Orleans princes is unbounded. And with good reason, according to a fact that he has often related himself.

It was a scene that took place during the last moments of the Grand Duchess of Orleans, the mother of the Count de Paris and the Duke de Chartres. That high-minded and intellectual princess lay in the stupor of approaching dissolution. All those present thought that she would never speak again, when suddenly the pale lips were seen to quiver with the burden of an unuttered request. Her royal sons sprang to the bedside and bending over her they caught these words, feebly spoken by the august sufferer's latest breath: "Never put your feet under any other care than that of Dr. Tompkins."

How an Eloping Wife Met Death in California.

Philadelphia Special to Chi. Commercial.

A terrible story of crime has just come to light, showing how an erring wife was cruelly murdered by her paramour. Last April the wife of George Beck, a butcher residing in the western part of the city, eloped with Thomas G. Klink, a saloon-keeper, with whom she had been in illicit intimacy. She took with them her daughter Lillie, a girl of thirteen years, and $1,000 belonging to her husband. Klink sold out his business, realizing about $5,000, leaving his wife and children destitute. A few days ago Lillie Beck returned to her father's house and stated that she had just come from San Francisco. She stated that Klink had gone into business there, and she and her mother lived with him. She said: "We hadn't been there long before they quarreled much. He said it was her fault, and she said always his. She was killed on July 21. I was to school in the afternoon when the first fight happened; when I came home about 4 o'clock she was [illegible]. He had her down in the yard, and had his knees on her breast. He was striking her in the face, and pulled her apron over her face and shoved it into her mouth so she could not balloo. When she saw me she called, 'Lillie, come to me; run in and tell the tavern-keeper.' I came back and she died in my arms. She burst a blood vessel. He picked her body up and took it upstairs to the room. He threatened that he would kill me if I told anybody what I saw. I didn't get to the Coroner, but I heard they said it was heart-disease. I knew myself she was killed."

1880. A MODEL MODERN NEWSPAPER 1880.

THE POST-DISPATCH
Of St. Louis.

DAILY AND WEEKLY EDITIONS

Consolidation of Three Newspapers in One.

The Evening Dispatch,
The Evening Post,
The Evening Star.

LEADING EVENING PAPER of the WEST.

A Democratic Journal Devoted to the Interests of Missouri.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1880.

The POST-DISPATCH has been and will be a Newspaper in the true sense of the word. It owns the exclusive membership and franchise in the Associated Press. In its constant telegraphic communication with all parts of the habitable Globe. Its Correspondents are at the principal Fountains of News, and spare neither Money, Labor nor Brains to be the EARLIEST, the most COMPLETE and the most RELIABLE Historians of the Incidents and Accidents of the Day throughout the World. It will maintain its Excellent Record of being the Most Thorough and the Most Accurate Chronicle of the Local Happenings of St. Louis, enjoying, as it does, facilities for gathering information that are not at the command of any other journal in the city.

Editorially it will continue to urge good, old-fashioned Democracy as the only Rational System of Government, and in the coming struggle between IMPERIALISM and FREE INSTITUTIONS it will be found at all times in the lead, fighting the Battle of the People beneath the Standard of Law, Liberty and Local Self-Government. Though Democratic, our Democracy is preceded by an allegiance to Truth and Honesty, and, once convinced that truth to itself or honesty to the public demand it, it has proved in the past that it will spare neither censure nor rebuke within or without the party when it deems them necessary. Its principles are tolerably familiar to the people of the State, as they have been repeatedly and frankly stated, and on every question from hard, sound Money to Western Improvements everybody knows that a definite position has been taken and held.

THE WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH.

The WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH has been established to be to Missouri what the Daily is to St. Louis, and the manner in which it has been taken up—evidenced by the surest of all testimony, the subscription list—shows that a progressive, enterprising, live Newspaper can command success in itself, without adventitious aid, and with no recommendation except that of innate and superior merit. The WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH has already become an institution which Missourians cannot afford to do without, for, in the character of its news and the practical value of all its matter, it is almost a necessary household article to every farmer or merchant in the country. The markets are brought down to the very moment of going to press, just a day ahead of any morning contemporary, for, in the nature of things, a paper printed in the morning cannot contain as late news as a paper printed in the evening and going out by the same evening's mail. The importance of this one consideration, were there no other, would be enough to place the WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH far beyond any competitor, for a day's intelligence from a fluctuating market may save or make a business. The Weekly is specially edited to give a complete history of the week brought down to 4 o'clock of the day of issue, each subject having its carefully considered space, and its proper application to the business, the domestic, or the social wants of its readers.

The year of our Lord 1880 opens with a promise of solid prosperity, the like of which has not been known since the War. The piping times of Peace in all their fullness and plenty foster industry and enterprise in the land. Every wheel that turns, and every share that rolls the mellow loam up to the ripening sun, is driven by the sturdy arm of a citizen whose vote will be cast in this crisis-year either to make this happy promise a permanent reality of true popular self-government, or to see in its stead a sham Republic, with its attendants of a military, personal, centralized Government, eternal sectional strife and certain Mexicanization.

The POST-DISPATCH will appeal during the coming year to the conscience and patriotism of all true Americans who would keep the sacred and revered fires of Liberty alight to rally to its support during a season which will witness the bitterest and the most important Political Canvass which the American Republic has been yet called upon to enter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

The POST-DISPATCH will be delivered by carriers to any part of the city or sent by mail, postage prepaid, to subscribers in any part of the Union, on the following terms:

Daily, per week	20 cents.
Daily, per month	85 cents.
Daily, three months	$2 50
Daily, six months	4 50

Twenty-Four Years Ago.

For more than two-thirds of a life-time Charter Oak Stoves have been a familiar household word, daily gaining in popularity, and doing a vast deal of good in enabling housewives to place before their families every day three "square meals," well and quickly cooked, at a very small cost of both fuel and labor, and we are doing no more than our duty in advising every housekeeper who does not have a Charter Oak Stove to get one with the least possible delay.

RAILROAD RUMBLE.

J. P. Rockwell, formerly of the C., B. and Q. and now a resident of Dallas, Texas, is in the city.

A. W. Soper, General Superintendent of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern, returned from the East this morning.

There were great doings in New Orleans and Houston over the completion of the Louisiana Western on the arrival of the first train of cars.

Lyman McCarthy has accepted the position of General Western Agent of the Baltimore and Ohio at Kansas City. Mac was formerly with the K. C. and N.

Mr. A. A. Talmage, General Superintendent of the Missouri Pacific, returned from New York yesterday, and went out on the road this morning. He is expected to return by Saturday.

WHO WILL IT BE?

A report has gained circulation that John F. Miller, of the Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis Road, has been appointed general manager of the Vandalia. An inquiry made in the matter this morning failed to verify the rumor. Mr. Darlow, the acting manager of the Vandalia, said that he had received no intimation of the appointment, and does not believe the question has been decided yet. There are a number of gentlemen spoken of as aspirants for the place, among whom are John F. Miller, E. A. Ford, general passenger agent of the Vandalia, George E. Farrington, and indeed almost every one in a prominent position on the road.

TRY our 5c square Graham bread. It is the best. See label. Vienna Model Bakery, Eighth and Walnut. 282

THE STRIKE.

Work Going on as Usual at the Iron Mountain Depot.

There were no appearances of a strike at the freight depot of the Iron Mountain Railroad this morning. Everything was proceeding as quietly and evenly as though nearly one hundred men had not quit work yesterday and demanded increased pay. A number of the section hands were pressed into service as platform men, and about sixty new hands employed. To-day there were more men at work than there have been for some time, but the strikers were not of the number.

Mr. Dudley, assistant superintendent of the road, said to-day that they were willing to pay anything in reason, and as they are now paying as much as any other road, there is no just cause for grumbling on the part of the men.

Scenes and Incidents of the Convention—The New Central Committee — The Nominees.

The Democratic City Convention, called for 9 o'clock this morning at Mercantile Library Hall, was very slow in assembling, and it was ten minutes past 10 o'clock before Daniel Kerwin, Chairman of the Democratic City Central Committee, called the body to order. For two hours before the opening the streets in the vicinity of the hall presented an animated appearance. All the politicians of the city were on hand; so were the delegates, and in their midst circulated the anxious candidates. The arrangement of the hall is superior to any previous city convention. The ample space reserved for spectators is fairly filled.

THE CALL TO ORDER.

Mr. Kerwin in calling the convention to order said:

Gentlemen, you will please come to order. By authority in me vested it becomes my duty to call this convention to order and name a temporary chairman, but before I perform that duty I feel that it is incumbent upon me to make a few remarks. You are assembled together to-day as the representatives of the Democracy of St. Louis in convention for the purpose of agreeing upon the names of suitable persons to be placed upon your ticket as candidates for the various offices to be filled at the approaching November election, and it therefore behooves you to act wisely, cautious and yet determined in the exercise of your best judgment in making your selections.

It is not only one of the fundamental principles of our party, but it is right, it is Democratic, that each and every citizen, whether he be a delegate to a convention or a voter favoring certain friends for public offices, should use his utmost exertions and all honorable means to secure his choice as nominee of the party, yet, should he fail, it is not only proper, but it is in accordance with the true spirit of Democracy, that the majority must and shall rule; that individual opinions must give way to that great foundation platform of our common country, as laid down by the Democratic fathers of our Government—everything for the cause, nothing for men. At our recent National Convention in Cincinnati our party put forward as our standard bearer for the Presidency of the United States, after mature deliberation, that world-renowned hero, patriot, Democrat, Winfield Scott Hancock, and for the Vice-Presidency that eminent statesman, William H. English, names above reproach in the estimation of all fair-minded American citizens. Whether those citizens be native or adopted, we as a party, as in the past, will forever maintain, are equal under the law, without regard to race, color or previous condition.

Then followed the Jefferson City convention, where your representatives put forward that pure, that noble, that distinguished patriot, Col. Thos. T. Crittenden, for Governor, against whom the tongue of slander has never and can never utter a truthful charge.

In conclusion you are called together in convention for the purpose of selecting suitable candidates to fill the various positions, and I trust you will bury all private feelings and preferences in the interest of the common cause, in which not only we as a party are interested, but the people of our whole country, North, South, East and West, as well as the downtrodden people of the monarchies of Europe who took to this land of freedom as the asylum of the oppressed and the beacon light of liberty for the civilized world.

Do your work without feeling, without acrimony or under any outside personal influence, and by so doing you will command and deserve the respect of your own fellow partisans as well as all honest thinking, candid political opponents. I thank you for your attention.

I now take pleasure in nominating for your temporary chairman Judge J. D. S. Dryden.

TEMPORARY OFFICERS.

Judge J. D. S. Dryden came forward amidst applause. Mr. Geo. F. Doyan, secretary of the Democratic Central Committee, was made temporary secretary.

Judge Dryden upon assuming the chair spoke briefly, urging harmony, a cheerful obedience to the majority, the necessity of selecting good men, men fit to be voted for. "The public demand honest and capable men." Nominations were then made for temporary secretaries, Michael Dugan, Chas. T. Noland and Pierre Chouteau being selected.

Mr. Carlisle of the Second Ward moved that the temporary officers be declared the permanent officers of the Convention, but withdrew the motion to give way to Mr. De Menil, who moved a call of the wards and the appointment of a committee on permanent organization and credentials. The call resulted as follows:

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

First Ward, Thos. Kelly; Second Ward, John O'Toole; Third Ward, James Farrel; Fourth Ward, Michael Walsh; Fifth Ward, Albert Hercules; Sixth Ward, Daniel Meyers; Seventh Ward, A. Helmbacher; Eighth Ward; S. H. Pettingill; Ninth Ward, Henry W. Mueller; Tenth Ward, John McGinness; Eleventh Ward, J. L. Reinhardt; Twelfth Ward, David Hogan; Thirteenth Ward, L. A. Steber; Fourteenth Ward, John Powers; Fifteenth Ward, Diedrich Weston; Sixteenth Ward, J. Neuhoff; Seventeenth Ward, Sam. Peper; Eighteenth Ward, M. Doughery; Nineteenth Ward, M. Ryan; Twentieth Ward, Solon Stanton; Twenty-first Ward, Chas. Aglan; Twenty-second Ward, Thos. R. Walsh; Twenty-third Ward, F. H. Becherer; Twenty-fourth Ward, Madison Judd; Twenty-fifth Ward. G. Steffens; Twenty sixth Ward, W. L. Hawkins; Twenty-seventh Ward. Silas W. Dooley; Twenty-eighth Ward, Jno. J. McCarty.

COMMITTEE ON CREDENTIALS.

The committees were then given leave to retire, and much confusion ensued in the midst of which Judge W. C. Jones offered a resolution instructing the Chair to appoint a committee of five, to whom all resolutions should be referred without debate.

When order was restored by John W. Drake, the Sergeant-at-Arms, a motion was carried inviting Col. A. W. Slayback to address the convention. The Colonel could not be found, and was then loudly called for. He responded promptly and addressed the convention, dwelling upon the importance of the next campaign. The issue before the people was the right of the people to govern themselves. He dwelt upon the crime against free government committed at the last election, and declared that a vow had been registered in every Democratic heart that civil liberty should be vindicated by the Democracy in 1880. The rights of the people and the Constitution of the country are in the hands of the party. The speaker's allusions to the Hancock letter to Sherman were received with vociferous applause. "The only argument against our national ticket is the waving of the ensanguined nether garment," the old cry against rebel brigadiers. Mr. Conkling rose in his place some time ago and complained that there were only four men in the Senate who had fought in the war. Mr. Conkling himself had never seen service unless his retreat before Gov. Sprague be counted. Maine sent a civilian and, in fact, this thing that Mr. Conkling complains off has been largely done by the Republicans. Gen. Ewing and Lyman Trumbull were defeated overwhelmingly and numerous other instances might be given, and yet the Republicans blame us for not sending soldiers to Congress. Any man who comes over is good enough for the Republicans, and Col. Mosby's autograph was necessary for obtaining office under Grant every time, and the same man is now serving his country among the Celestials. The complaint mentioned before comes not from those who fought in the war but from those who staid at home and sent their boys to the front. In conclusion the speaker said that if the convention will emulate the Cincinnati and State Conventions, every man on the ticket will be elected.

The Hon. John I. Martin was called upon and responded with alacrity. He alluded to the fact that though the city was Democratic, a majority of the offices were filled by Republicans, and he pointed out that this was entirely due to the party mismanagement. He exhaustively reviewed the national campaign, pointed out that the founders of the Republican party are hurrahing for Hancock and closed amid great cheers.

The committees were a long time in session, and a recess was taken until a quarter to twelve, when the convention was again called to order, and the reports received.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

The committee on permanent organization, through its chairman, Louis A. Steber, reported the following officers:

Permanent chairman, Chas. E. Slayback, first vice-president, Judge J. D. S. Dryden, second vice-president, Capt. Sam'l. Pepper; third vice-president, Francis X. Becherer; secretaries, Nicholas Bell, Thomas Culkin, Wm. L. Fitzgerald, Chas. Noland; chief sergeant-at-arms, John D. Miller, assistant sergeants-at-arms, Ed. Butler, John Parker, John W. Drake and Patrick Bambrick.

Order of business:

1. Nomination of Sheriff.
2. Nomination of Circuit Judge.
3. Nomination of Probate Judge.
4. Nomination of Circuit Attorney.
5. Nomination of Assistant Circuit Attorney.
6. Nomination of Public Administrator.
7. Nomination of Coroner.
8. Call of wards for the nomination of Central Committeemen.

A committee consisting of A. Helmbacher, Lawrence Harrigan and L. A. Steber was appointed to escort Mr. Slayback to the chair.

The Committee on Permanent Organization also introduced

THE FOLLOWING RULES,

which were adopted:

That no member of said new Central Committee shall be a candadate for or hold any office or an appointment to office under pay of city or State governments; to do so shall disqualify him for membership, and his seat shall become vacant.

Resolved, That the new Central Committee shall be elected for two years.

Resolved, That all vacancies on the committee created by disqualification, removal out of the ward from which he may be chosen, death, resignation or otherwise, shall be filled by the voters of the ward in which this vacancy occurs.

Resolved, That the new committee shall have full authority to settle all disputes that may arise and fill all vacancies that may occur on the ticket from any cause whatever after the adjournment of all nominating conventions, without the advice, dictation or consent of any person or party outside of the said committee.

Resolved, That hereafter the representation to all nominating conventions for the Democratic party in this city shall be five delegates from each ward.

Resolved, That the new committee appointed by the convention are hereby instructed to assume the liabilities incurred by the old committee up to the date of this convention, and to arrange to assess the candidates to defray the expenses.

Mr. Slayback briefly returned his thanks for the honor conferred, and after the passage of a resolution relative to keeping the floor clear of all but delegates, nominations were declared in order.

SHERIFF.

Mr. Bell commenced the call of the wards for candidates for Sheriff. When the Seventh Ward was called Alex N. De Menil arose to nominate Morgan Boland, the first mention of his name being greeted with prolonged applause. The effort of Mr. De Menil was very happy. He dwelt at length upon Mr. Boland's spotless record, his fitness for office, and particularly his availability. Not to nominate Mr. Boland would simply be a suicidal policy. Prolonged applause greeted the close of Mr. De Menil's remarks.

Mr. Farrell, of the Third Ward, briefly put in nomination that tried and true Democrat John Slevin.

The Fifth Ward delegation seconded Mr. Boland's nomination. The Eighth Ward also seconded Boland.

Mr. McGinnis, of the Tenth Ward, put in nomination Bernard P. Taaffe. [Applause.] Jas. Carlisle, under call of the Eleventh Ward, spoke warmly for Morgan Boland, referring to him as a gallant Union soldier fit to be on the ticket with Hancock and Crittenden.

L. A. Steber, upon behalf of the Thirteenth Ward Democracy, seconded Boland's nomination. The Fifteenth Ward delegation, through Louis R. Tatum, also endorsed the nomination of Boland.

JOHN FINN.

When the Eighteenth Ward was called F. X. McCabe arose and in a well-worded speech, lasting ten minutes, put John Finn before the convention. He referred at length to Mr. Finn's past party service, his sacrifices at a time when the cause of Democracy in St. Louis was hopeless, the honest administration of the affairs of his office, and paid a tribute to the personal character of his candidate that was really eloquent. Mr. McCabe's speech was the best made up to the time, and its conclusion was the signal of applause that continued for several minutes. The Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Wards seconded the nomination of Boland. The Twenty-eighth, through Wm. J. Russell and "on behalf of 900 Democrats," seconded the nomination of Bernard P. Taafe.

On motion of James Carlisle, all candidates were required to pledge themselves in writing to abide by the decision of the convention.

The pledges of the candidates all being submitted and read, after some delay a ballot was entered into, resulting in the amidst most tremendous applause. The ballot was as follows:

NOMINATION OF BOLAND

The First Ward changed one vote from Finn to Boland, thus giving the next Sheriff ninety-nine votes. Immediately upon the announcement of the result, F. X. McCabe moved, amidst cheers, that the nomination be made unanimous, and the convention so ordered.

Scenes During the Ballot.

The balloting for Sheriff was very exciting and the various candidates' names were received with the wildest cheers. When the Twenty-second Ward announced its five votes for Bolond and thereby gave him the necessary majority, men stood on chairs, stamped, yelled, and in every way manifested the most extravagant joy. When this scene, which continued for five minutes, was at an end, the remaining votes were cast in a dreary and perfunctory manner.

At the announcement of the result the wildest scene again occurred. Mr. De Menil moved that Mr. Boland be invited to address the convention. Mr. Boland could not be found, and the convention very reluctantly settled down to business, much displeased at not being able to gaze upon the victor.

Circuit Judge.

The call of wards for Judge of the Circuit Court proceeded without any nominations being made until the Thirteenth Ward was reached, when Louis Steber sprang the name of Alex. Martin, stating that he did not know that the gentleman named would accept the trust; he had never spoken to him on the subject, but he knew that Mr. Martin was a man of unquestioned ability and character, who would reflect credit upon the bench and himself. Mr. R. C. Kehrns, of the Seventeenth Ward, in an elaborate ten minute speech nominated Wm. Horner. Pierre Chouteau seconded the nomination, briefly stating that he had prepared an elaborate speech, but Mr. Kehrn had covered the ground thoroughly. Mr. Steber withdrew the name of Mr. Martin, and there being no other name before the convention, upon motion of Mr. F. X. McCabe, the Secretary was instructed to cast the vote of the convention for Mr. Horner, who was declared the unanimous nominee.

Probate Judge.

Nominations being in order for Probate Judge, the secretary read a letter from Judge Woerner, the incumbent, in which he set forth his belief that no vacancy exists, but expressing his willingness to accept a nomination at the hands of the convention. Mr. Fred. Arendes, of the Fifth Ward, nominated Judge Woerner. There being no other nominees, the clerk was instructed to cast the vote of the convention for Judge Woerner, who was declared the nominee.

Circuit Attorney.

This was the nomination that excited most attention, and it was approached with corresponding excitement. The leading candidates were believed to be very evenly divided and a long and close series of ballots were looked for. When the Fifteenth Ward was called Jeff Chandler, holding a proxy for the purpose, arose to nominate Mr. J. C. Normile. He dwelled very strongly upon the merits of the gentleman, pointing out his ability as a lawyer and his previous success in the office he now sought. Mr. Chandler's effort was received with a slight display of cheering.

Robert M. Foster, holding a proxy in the Tenth Ward, put Samuel Erskine in nomination, in a speech abounding with good sense, although highly eulogistic of his candidate, whose life's devotion to the Democratic party, whose extended experience in the prosecution of criminals, whose known probity and conceded ability strongly recommended him to the people for the office to which he aspired.

W. H. Clopton put Sidney McCormack before the convention, who he claimed possessed all the necessary qualifications to successfully fill the office.

John T. Murphy, on behalf of the Twentieth Ward, seconded the nomination of Erskine. Judge Dryden gave his individual endorsement of McCormack. Silas W. Dooley, of the Twenty-seventh Ward, also eulogized Mr. McCormack.

The first ballot was entered into in a state of feverish excitement, which manifested itself throughout the balloting, which was very close. There was no choice, although Erskine came within ten votes of the nomination.

THE SECOND BALLOT.

The second ballot was ordered amidst the most intense excitement. McCormack's name was withdrawn by Judge Dryden. The tide immediately set in for Erskine, and long before the roll call was finished it was seen that Erskine was nominated.

The above was the ballot as first cast. Before its termination it was known that Erskine had taken the cake, and the Chairman was besieged by changes. Judge Jones, of the Fifteenth Ward, in the midst of the confusion, moved to make Erskine's nomination unanimous. The Chair ruled this motion out of order, but the changing went on, and the ballot when announced stood: Erskine, 103; Normile, 37.

Assistant Circuit Attorney.

L. A. Steber in a brief speech put M. J. Sullivan in nomination. The Fourteenth Ward simply announced the name of E. A. Noonan. Judge W. C. Jones, at some length, urged the candidacy of August Rebenack. Before the ballot was completed—the total being: Sullivan, 66 1-2; Noonan, 73 1-2; Rebenack, 1—changing set in on a very large scale and the vote was finally announced seventy-four and one-half for Noonan and sixty-five and one-half for Sullivan, Noonan thus receiving the nomination.
